HOOD SUNK IN BATTLE

Biggest British Warship Lost Off Greenland; 1300 Die

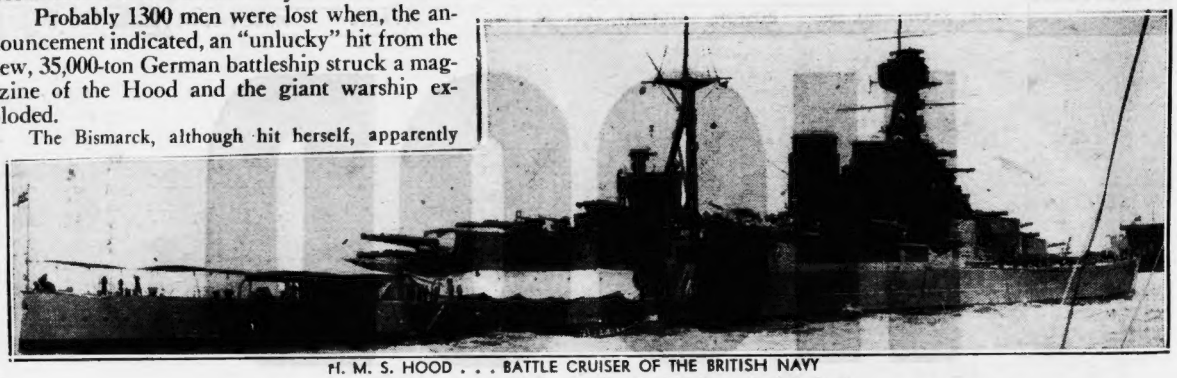
H. M. S. HOOD SUNK

LONDON, May 24 (AP)—Britain's mightiest battleship, the 42,100-ton battlecruiser Hood was blown up and sunk today in battle between Iceland and Greenland by the German battleship Bismarck. The Admiralty announced the loss tonight.

Probably 1300 men were lost when, the announcement indicated, an "unlucky" hit from the new, 35,000-ton German battleship struck a magazine of the Hood and the giant warship exploded.

The Bismarck, although hit herself, apparently escaped. The admiralty said she was being pursued.



H. M. S. HOOD . . . BATTLE CRUISER OF THE BRITISH NAVY

Huge Vessel Sunk Today in Battle Off Coast of Iceland

This was Britain's greatest naval disaster of the war, her worst blow at sea since the battleship Royal Oak was torpedoed in a daring submarine raid on the Scapa Flow naval base Oct. 14, 1939, when the war was less than two months old.

It came on Victoria Day, 122nd anniversary of the birth of Queen Victoria.

The admiralty said the British and German naval forces first met off the coast of Greenland and that the Hood was sunk in the ensuing action, which the Germans placed near Iceland.

(The Germans said the Bismarck was not seriously damaged. The Bismarck, at the battle position between Greenland and Iceland, was approximately 1400 miles from her nearest large port on the German North Sea coast. At her top speed of approximately 30 knots she could be expected to take at least 41 hours to get home.)

(Iceland and Greenland are separated by only about 250 miles of water. Thus, if both British and German statements are correct, the battle appears to have begun in waters off the Western Hemisphere island of Greenland and stretched southeast into the vicinity of Iceland, in the Eastern Hemisphere.)

Beside the Hood and the Royal Oak, the Admiralty has acknowledged these major British naval losses since the start of the war:

Five cruisers, 11 armed merchant cruisers, 43 destroyers—including two Canadian—and 25 submarinees.

The Hood's normal complement was 1341 men.

"An unlucky hit" destroyed the Hood, it said, while she was carrying the flag of Vice Admiral L. E. Holland.

The admiralty issued this communique:

"British naval forces intercepted this morning off the coast of Greenland German naval forces, including the battleship Bismarck.

"The enemy were attacked and during the ensuing action H. M. S. Hood (Capt. R. Kerr, C. B., R. N.) bearing the flag of Vice Admiral L. E. Holland, received an unlucky hit in a magazine and blew up.

EXPECT FEW SURVIVORS

"The Bismarck has received damage and the pursuit of the enemy continues.

"It is feared there will be few

Assassin's Shots Miss Italy's King

ROME, May 24 (AP)—A Greek, declared "affected by poetic madness," emptied a pistol at the motor car in which King Vittorio Emanuele was riding with the Albanian premier during the monarch's visit to Albania, official Italian dispatches from Tirana disclosed today. All the shots went wild.

The assailant, whose name was given as Vassal Laci Mihailoff, was arrested, the dispatches said, "and saved from lynching by the people so as not to complicate investigations begun to run down his possible accomplices."

In the motor car with the King-Emperor when the shooting occurred May 17, was Shefket Verlaci, who has been premier of Albania since the Italians first invaded that country early in 1939. The official announcement described the affair as an attempt on the life of Verlaci.

King Vittorio Emanuele returned to Rome by air from Tirana on May 17 after a week's tour of the Albania fronts

U. S. Housing Official Found Dead in Hotel

WASHINGTON, May 24 (INS)—Claude V. Parsons, first assistant administrator of the United States Housing authority and a former member of Congress from the 24th district of Illinois, was found dead in his hotel room today, apparently of an eart attack.

Parsons, 45, had served 10 consecutive years in Congress before defeat last year by his Republican opponent, Rep. James Vandaveer Heidinger. In January he was appointed in the USHA by President Roosevelt, and in that capacity was outranked in the agency only by Nathan Straus, administrator.

Floods Slow British Drive on Bagdad

NAZIS HOLD AIR BASE IN 5-DAY CRETE FIGHT

LONDON, May 24 (AP)—Britain will fight on against the Nazi invasion of Crete at almost any sacrifice, authoritative sources said today, as the fantastic battle for the Mediterranean island raged through its fifth day.

An authorized declaration the British do not intend to use Crete's southern ports for embarkation and others cautioning the people to expect naval losses were taken generally to mean there will be no retreat.

Prime Minister Churchill declared before the invasion the island would be defended to the death and without thought of withdrawal.

However, British reports available up to late today indicated the defenders were holding an edge in the fighting.

FIGHT WITH TANKS

A fierce battle was being fought around Malemi airdrome, where British and Greek forces are seeking to dislodge Nazi sky troops with artillery, tanks and machine-guns.

(The German high command, silent until now on the whole battle, issued a special communique today declaring German forces had been on Crete since May 20 and have taken the western end of the island, where Malemi is located, under control. It mentioned parachutists and other troops, without specifying whether these were forces landed by glider and transport plane or ferried by sea from Greece.)

Authoritative sources declared they had received no information indicating the Nazis had succeeded in landing sea-borne troops on the island "on any scale," but said it was probable some odd caiques (Greek sailing vessels) had reached the coast.

Describing the situation at Malemi as "not so good," one source said German planes had continued to land troops there yesterday and also had brought in "some artillery and mortars."

He said the artillery probably

U. S. Probes Nazi Wounding of 2

WASHINGTON, May 24 (INS)—The State Department today sought further details on the wounding of two Americans when the Egyptian liner Zamzam was sunk by a German raider in the South Atlantic.

Pending receipt of a complete report on the incident, the State Department took no action, but it was indicated that a vigorous protest might be sent Berlin if the circumstances of the wounding warrant.

The two Americans, Ned Laughinghouse, of Wilson, N. C., and Francis V. Vicovari, of New York, were reported by American Consul Henry S. Waterman to be in the hospital aboard the German ship which brought the American passengers to the French port of St. Jean De Luz.

DEFENSE ADVICE OF MR. HEARST IS VINDICATED

PASADENA, Cal., May 24—Declaring himself wholeheartedly "for all defense measures necessary to the preservation of our democratic and free way of life," Carl F. Wente, chairman of the Oakland, Cal., defense committee, commented here today:

"It is unfortunate that we did not, in the less hectic days just past, pay more attention to the advice of William Randolph Hearst.

"If we had done so we would today have had the world's greatest fleet, operating impregnably in both oceans.

"We would also have had an absolutely impregnable Panama Canal, amply protected by outposts, and a second interocean canal across Nicaragua for the easy transfer of our fighting ships from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

"And we would have had the world's greatest air force.

"Current events have more than vindicated the advice Mr. Hearst repeatedly gave, but which unfortunately was not followed."

Wente, who is president of the Central Bank of Oakland, is here attending the California Bankers' Association 50th annual convention.

State Rests in Tragic Hopeless Love Trial

By JAMES F. McENANEY
Boston Evening American Staff Reporter

The government abruptly rested its case today in the trial of Ruth Steadman on a charge of the strangle-slaying of young Robert Emery, the man she loved, completing its evidence against the blonde defendant at 11:30 a. m.

MRS. RUTH STANWOOD STEADMAN
Leaves Court After State Rested Its Case

The state brought its case to a close with the dramatic testimony that for long and fateful hours before his body was found, a minimum of 24 and a maximum of 40, Robert Emery lay dead in Ruth Steadman's apartment, strangled by a rope and suffocated by poison, while Ruth herself lapsed into a delirious coma from the same drug.

The testimony came from Medical Examiner Dr. Timothy Leary of Suffolk county, who was recalled to the stand and questioned again concerning his findings in the death of Emery, which the state charges was wrought at the hand of Ruth Steadman.

In terse, technical terms Dr. Leary reviewed his autopsy of Emery's body and then stated that, in his opinion, death had occurred from 24 to 40 hours before the body was found.

DIED SUNDAY OR MONDAY

Emery's body, long rigid in death, the rope twisted tightly about the neck, was discovered on Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 21, with Mrs. Steadman groaning in semi-consciousness in an adjoining room.

Dr. Leary's finding would fix the time of his death on the preceding Monday, or even Sunday, the day on which, it had been testified, Mrs. Steadman told of buying phenobarbital at a Charles st. drug store and administering it to Emery in milk in a lethal dose.

Witnesses have quoted her as saying she gave him the death potion with her own hand, because she could not bear the thought of sharing his love with any other woman, even his wife.

And during that long, confused, horrifying interval between his death and the discovery of his body, she herself had ample time, according to Dr. Leary's findings, to determine what her own fate would be, and to drink of the potion, fatal to him, which took her to the very brink of death.

WORDS DON'T CRUSH HER

The blonde defendant sat through Dr. Leary's testimony, calm and poised, appearing refreshed despite the ordeal of the week.

There were fewer spectators in the courtroom today, the curious throngs that have jammed the corridors apparently staying away under the impression there would be no Saturday session.

Dr. Leary's testimony was corroborated in part by the witness who followed him, Mrs. Lillian Taylor, Boston policewoman, who had guarded Mrs. Steadman during her stay at Boston Psychopathic Hospital. Mrs. Taylor quoted the de-

Ruth's Pert Little Hat Sets Fashion for Girls

By ALICE BISSELL
Boston Evening American Staff Reporter

A little blue beret-type hat woven of navy blue silk and straw has become a legend; and the tilt at which it is worn has become fashion; and the pale face with its deep blue eyes and the blonde hair beneath the little hat has in one week become one of romance and mystery.

Ruth Steadman topped her tan gaberdine sports dress with the hat she has worn every day since the trial began. For the first time she did not appear in the courtroom with a new outfit.

But today there were four little blue beret hats in the predominantly feminine crowd, four hats slanted over the right eyes of young girls in their 20's and worn with a long bob.

Three girls sitting behind Ruth Steadman among the spectators, and who have daily attended the trial, have selected for their new spring bonnets ones identical to that of the defendant . . . perhaps by coincidence.

The girls were not together, but each one leaned forward as the defendant took her place in the dock, peering at her confident entrance and at the weak smile she flashed at a court attendant.

Ruth seemed calm and quiet during the short morning session, and except for once, when Asst. Dist. Atty. Edward M. Sullivan referred to "the body of Robert

Harvard Caravan Cyclist Hurt in Crash

WORCESTER, May 24—Harvard's 3-man bicycle caravan met with misfortune here today when one member was in collision with an automobile while en route to visit their girl friends at Smith College.

John Palen Powelson, 20, of Syracuse, N. Y., who lives in the Dunster House, Cambridge, was forced out of the excursion when he collided with a car driven by Herbert B. Clapp, 19, of East Windsor Hill, Ct. He received abrasions of the left leg and knee. The students left Dunster House shortly after dawn today for the 99-mile pedal.

U. S. Newscaster Causes Blackout For Royal Family

NEW YORK, May 24 (INS)—Edward R. Murrow, Columbia Broadcasting System's London correspondent, today told how Larry Leseuer, fellow CBS newscaster, had gained "some sort of distinction."

"He was passing a building," Murrow said of Leseuer, "and saw a light streaming from an upstairs window. He reported it to a policeman.

The policeman said he would inform a sentry.

"The sentry used the telephone and the light was extinguished.

"The building was Buckingham Palace."

MISS ANN SUTHERLAND OF NEW BEDFORD
Wellesley Hoop Victor Announces June 17 Bridal

WELLESLEY HOOP RACE, HUBBY WON BY SENIOR

Mortarboards askew and black gowns flying in the wind, 300 Wellesley College seniors raced today to win a husband.

Ann Sutherland of New Bedford won. She crossed the line first in the annual hoop-rolling contest, bowed between out-of-breath puffs as she took the "bridal bouquet" and announced to classmates that on June 17, the day after Commencement, she will become Mrs. Thomas Prince Riley in the College Chapel and that her address thereafter will be Brunswick, Me.

100-YARD RACE

No Harvard man in feminine academic garb grabbed honors today as one did two years ago and for his efforts landed in Lake Waban.

To a well-modulated "Go!" the seniors dashed down the slope from Tower Court hill over the 400-yard stretch toward the chapel.

Hoops went in all directions, of course, but were batted back in line and to the accompaniment of spills and skids the seniors raced for the husband-goal.

Miss Sutherland was hard-pressed for honors and the might-have-been winner slipped on the dewy grass when victory required only one more thump on the hoop. In the confusion at the finish her identity could not be immediately established.

Miss Sutherland was clocked in 49 seconds.

WON SOPHOMORE HONORS

Miss Sutherland is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie H. Sutherland. Her mother is a Wellesley graduate, class of 1904.

Her record at college has no first in athletics. She was on the sophomore honor roll, vice-president of the junior class, is now manager of the Wellesley choir and will be named a Wellesley College scholar at commencement.

The brown-haired winner received her bouquet from Miss Nancy Strelinger of Birmingham, Mich., president of the senior class.

Then all the gals lined up and went to last chapel, tap-dancing on their hoops and singing the college song.

VISITOR — Lady Cathleen S. Queensbury, wife of the Marquis Francis Queensbury, arrives in New York by Clipper plane en route to Canada to visit her son and daughter, who are there for the duration.

2 Youths Killed In Training Plane

WICHITA, Kan., May 24 (INS)—Two youths were killed instantly today when their WACO trainer ship crashed on a field between Cessna and Wichita municipal airport.

The pair were identified as John Blainpied, a ground mechanic for the Wichita Flying Service, and William Woodward, pilot.

DAVE GLUECK, EX-GRID STAR, DIES IN CRASH

Almost on the eve of his wedding to a Radcliffe College senior, Lieut. David Glueck of the U. S. Army Air Corps, former Harvard football star and reporter for the Boston Hearst newspapers, was killed today in an automobile accident in Lynchburg, Va.

The accident resulted fatally for the one-time Harvard guard, when his car collided with a truck. A companion, Lieut. J. A. Barrett, of Ossining, N. Y., was not hurt.

Lieut. Glueck received his Air Corps commission about a month ago and had since been stationed at Gunther Field in Alabama.

He was on his way north from the field for his wedding Tuesday night, in St. John's Church, Huntington, N. Y., to Miss Margaret Bonnell of Halesite, L. I. She graduates this year from Radcliffe, where she has been chairman of the board of hall presidents.

LIEUT. DAVID S. GLUECK, 25
Flier Killed in Crash

While at Harvard, Lieut. Glueck was a guard on the varsity football team, a boxer and a member of Pi Eta.

After his graduation in 1939 he joined the Hearst newspapers in Boston, first writing sports and then moving over to the news staff. Last summer he resigned to enlist in the Air Corps.

Brazil Boys' Club Envoy Gets Royal Greeting Here

Roberto Paulo Cezar de Andrade, 14-year-old Brazilian goodwill minister without portfolio, but with plenty of young Latin personality, arrived in Boston today to represent the South American youth at exercises marking the 35th anniversary of the start of boys' clubs in the United States.

His reception at the gangplank of the Eastern Steamship Co. liner New York was nearly as bewildering as any accorded important envoys bringing secret treaties here for signature.

Roberto de Andrade

Young Roberto took everything in his stride, however, including the popping flashlight bulbs of the press photographers, who posed him with J. Willard Hayden, president of the Charles Hayden Foundation, who will play host to the youthful South American during his Boston stay.

Accompanying Roberto to Boston was Albert E. Hines, director of the Madison Square Boys' Club of New York. Roberto arrived from South America last Monday and he will spend another three weeks in the U. S.

"The thing that impressed me," Roberto stated, "is that South Americans and North Americans are so very much alike.

"Friendship between our countries is already a very real thing, and I can see why now. We do the same things and we are the same people."

The young "ambassador" said that boys in his country were making an effort to learn English and he thought Americans should try to learn to speak Portuguese and Spanish languages of South America.

GIRL SCOUTS GUIDES

Roberto thought that this would help draw the two continents even closer together.

His program today included a tour of Greater Boston's historic spots and his guides were two pretty 15-year-old Lexington girl scouts, Cynthia Dodge and Barbara Shaffer.

Later he met Mayor Tobin and Governor Saltonstall and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., at exercises dedicating the construction of the quarter-million-dollar South Boston Boys' Club.

Earlier he was honor guest at a luncheon tendered him by J. Willard Hayden at the Copley Plaza Hotel, where he met William E. Hall, president of Boys' Clubs of America and other notables.

The Brazilian boy, who personally brought greetings from President Vargas to President Roosevelt, officially represents the Federated Boys' Club of Brazil.

His visit here was sponsored by prominent Brazilians and Americans. Among his U. S. sponsors were former President Hoover, Alfred E. Smith and Mayor LaGuardia.

Girl, 8, Drowns In Terror Leap

Sudden fright was blamed today for the death of little Walla Kain, 8, of Pleasant st., East Weymouth, who drowned in a pond near Fairmount Cemetery after her playmates unwittingly shoved her into the middle of the pond in a rowboat.

Panic stricken, the child leaped from the boat into the water and sank after a short struggle. The youngsters ran to Phillip Sullivan, 30, of Cedar st., for aid.

Sullivan recovered the body, and firemen worked over the girl for an hour in efforts to restore life, but their efforts were futile.

Emmanuel to Honor Founder of Order

Emmanuel College will honor Mother Katherine Drexel, founder of the Sisters of the Blessed Sacrament, with the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters, first honorary degree ever to be given by Emmanuel, it was announced today

The degrees will be awarded at the college's 19th annual commencement exercises next week.

Nazis Won't Free 140 Americans

LONDON, May 24 (INS)—A neutral diplomatic source in London charged that Germany is "hedging" regarding disposition of the 140 Americans now held at Nazi-occupied St. Jean de Luz after being removed from the sunken Ekyptian liner Zamzam.

According to this source the Germans are playing a waiting game regarding the Americans pending President Roosevelt's scheduled radio address Tuesday night.

PLANE PLANT STRIKE VOTED BY CIO UNION

By the Associated Press

CIO workers have voted to strike Wednesday against North American Aviation, Inc., of Inglewood, Cal., unless their wage demands are met.

They are asking increases from 50 cents to 75 cents an hour in minimum wages and 10 cents an hour raises for all employes.

In Washington, however, the Defense Mediation Board telegraphed the union asking that a strike be withheld until the board has had opportunity to adjust the dispute.

North American is working on $190,000,000 of orders for the United States and Great Britain.

5829 TO 210 VOTE

The vote, taken yesterday, was 5829 in favor of a strike and 210 against.

General Motors Corp. faced a new strike threat today at Pontiac, Mich.

Just a week after the big motor firm averted a threatened walkout in 60 of its plants by granting wage increases of 10 cents an hour, the Pontiac local of the CIO United Automobile Workers filed notce with the Michigan labor mediation board of intent to strike. The union charged the plant management with anti-union activity.

The CIO-UAW announced yesterday that three GM locals had accepted the new, wage-raising contract.

They were the Oldsmobile plant at Lansing, Mich., the Fisher Stamping Plant at Grand Rapids, Mich., and the Chevrolet plant at Janesville, Wis.

NAVY MAY DO WORK

At San Francisco, where a strike of 1700 CIO and A. F. of L. machinists has tied up work by 10 times that many men on a half-billion dollars' worth of shipbuilding in 11 yards, it was reported that the Navy might complete in its own yards work on some of the tied-up ships, but would not try to force reopening of the struck yards.

Naval sources said some of the vessels might be towed to the Mare Island yard for completion. It was said only three days of machine work would be required to convert one ship from a freighter into an airplane tender. Harry Hock, business agent of the A. F. of L. union, said:

"We'd be happy" if the government would take over the shipyards "under the same conditions as Mare Island."

STRIKE VOTE

In the capital, also, the Defense Mediation Board called for closed-door discussions today designed to call a halt to the contract dispute between the CIO United Mine Workers and the soft coal operators.

It was learned that William Green, president of the A. F. of L., had approved the taking of a strike vote by A. F. of L. workers at various plants of the Reynolds Metal Co., producers of aluminum.

F. D. Chat Likely To Irk His Foes

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—President Roosevelt's restatement of the nation's foreign policy in a radio address Tuesday night, a White House official said today, will "not be pleasing to opponents of democracy, either at home or abroad."

Press Secretary Stephen T. Early made the statement when asked by reporters what the President would say.

Longer Army Service Looms for Militia

WASHINGTON, May 24 (INS)—The War Department is pressing a new two-point legislative program to extend the service of National Guardsmen beyond one year and to abolish 12-month enlistments in the Regular Army, congressional sources told today.

Stolen Knife Kills Boy in Store Break

A butcher knife stolen in an earlier break became the weapon that ended a 14-year-old Roxbury boy's life in a second attempted robbery, the youthful companion of the victim, Vernon R. Baxter of Fountain st., Roxbury, told Judge Samuel Eisenstadt in Roxbury court today.

Young Baxter's death came within two weeks of a tearful plea by his mother, Mrs. Erna Baxter, in the same court, that saved him from being sent away for failure to comply with terms of parole laid down when he was arrested last October on a charge of larceny of automobile accessories.

The mother accepted the responsibility to see that he attended church and school and stayed home nights.

Only 15 years old himself, Baxter's chum haltingly related the story of being interrupted in the looting of a small variety store on Mascoma st., Roxbury, when the proprietor entered. He said in their attempt to rush Barnett Daytz, 61, both he and Baxter were cut by the 4½-inch blade they dropped outside the store.

STORE MAN IS FREED

Daytz told Judge Eisenstadt he returned to his store to put food in the refrigerator and turn on the light when he saw the knife, picked it up and then discovered the boys behind a counter.

He said when they rushed him and one boy attempted to grab him by the throat he forgot he held the knife and struck to defend himself.

Judge Eisendtadt refused to grant complaints sought by the police for murder, manslaughter and assault and battery with a dangerous weapon and ordered Daytz released.

"He only defended himself," said Judge Eisenstadt. "He showed courage."

Baxter's companion, who lives in Magnolia st., Roxbury, told Judge Eisenstadt they broke into the butcher shop of Abraham Needle on Blue Hill ave. last night by using skeleton keys, and took the butcher knife and $2 in change.

HID IN BUSHES

They used a hand drill to force the back door of Daytz's store, he testified. Both were wounded in their attempt to escape, he said, and after they eluded Daytz, Baxter told him he was badly hurt.

"I'm knifed," the boy said Baxter cried as he fell.

"I told him to hide in the bushes and I would be back," the boy said.

He returned, he said, and became frightened when he saw Baxter was only half conscious. He then dragged him to the sidewalk in Magnolia st. and left him.

The wounded boy was discovered by Dr. Jacques Berkowitz, 44, of Blue Hill ave., while driving with a friend, Frank Verrochi, 35, a Magnolia st. garage owner, and Mrs. Berkowitz.

They picked up the boy and started for City Hospital. On the way, the boy died.

Baxter's companion was sent from the court to City Hospital for treatment for a cut on his left shoulder.

Baxter's identity remained undisclosed until today. He was identified at the Southern Mortuary by a sister, Allison Baxter, 18 years old, after her mother learned the boy was not at home.

Tobin Sees 40-Cent Cut in Tax Rate

A slight drop in the Boston tax rate, from last year's $40.60 possibly to an even $40, was seen by Mayor Tobin today after substantial revenue gains were recorded in the street and registry departments.

Waltham fixed the 1941 rate today at $36, a reduction of 40 cents on the 1940 rate.

Somerset did slightly better. It announced a $24.50 rate, $1.50 less than last year.

LINDY BLASTS F.D., ASKS PEACE LEADER

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Charles A. Lindbergh and Sen. Burton K. Wheeler today have joined in a call for "adequate leadership" to keep the nation out of the European war.

With the declaration that America could be the "strongest and most influential" country in the world, Lindbergh asserted:

"We lack only a leadership that places America first, a leadership that does for 130 million people what Washington did for us when we were only 3 million people, a leadership that tells what it means and means what it says."

Saying that a "rising cry against war" was coming from the country, Lindbergh went on:

"It asks how this situation came about. It demands an explanation of what happened at the elections last November. It demands an accounting from a government that has led us to war while it promised us peace."

Sen. Wheeler, Montana Democrat, demanded that President Roosevelt "rid himself of those war makers that surround him, who refuse to understand the wishes of the people," and said he believed the President could demand that "the war makers, the Hitlers of Germany, the Churchills in England and the Knoxes and Stimsons step down and out."

Lindbergh and Wheeler were the principal speakers at a rally of the America First Committee at Madison Square Garden. Police estimated 20,500 were in the Garden and 2000 outside.

"We had no more chance to vote on the issue of peace and war last November than if we had been in a totalitarian state ourselves," said Lindbergh.

About 500 policemen stood guard, officials of the Fight for Freedom committee, the Friends of Democracy and several other organizations were notified that picketing would be prohibited.

Boos and yells resounded through the Garden when John T. Flynn, chairman of the New York chapter of the America First committee, disavowed any Nazi support of the rally and excoriated Joseph E. McWilliams, founder of the American Destiny party and unsuccessful candidate for Congress in last fall's election.

Cardinal Joins Veterans In Fenway Memorial Mass

Led by Cardinal O'Connell, Boston and New England will pay tribute tomorrow to the hero dead of the nation's past wars.

The Cardinal is scheduled to preside at the annual military mass in the morning at Fenway Park under auspices of the Suffolk County Council, American Legion.

Other guests listed are Mayor Tobin, Dept. Comdr. Chester H. Grant, and all department officers of the American Legion.

Preceding the mass will be a military parade, starting from Copley sq. at 9:45 a. m., and proceeding along Dartmouth st., Commonwealth ave. and Jersey st. to Fenway Park.

Rev. Albert J. Higgins, chaplain of Brockton Post, A. L., and curate of St. Anthony's Church, Allston, will celebrate the mass at 11 o'clock. The sermon will be preached by Rev. John J. McGarry, D.C.L., pastor of Sacred Heart Church, Roslindale.

At Malden, some 1500 men will assemble at the armory for the third annual communion breakfast of the Catholic Men of Malden. Rev. Fr. Daniel W. Lenehan, pastor of the Sacred Heart Church, is honorary chairman of the committee, while Eugene W. Quinn, Jr., is active chairman with John W. McDevitt scheduled to act as toastmaster.

On the Boston Common at 11 a. m., the North Sea Mine Force Ass'n, Inc., will hold memorial services with National Chaplain Rev. Laurence J. FitzSimon scheduled to give the invocation.

MARINE SHOOTING PROBED

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., May 24—Capt. John J. Brown today ordered an investigation into the accidental shooting of Robert William Hayes, 23, of New rd., Kittery, Me., wounded.

$10,000 Default In Optical Theft

Bail of $10,000 was defaulted in Woburn court today by Louis Mansolilli, 50, of Beacon st, Chelsea, operator of an optical supply firm in Bromfield st., Boston, when he failed to appear to answer a charge of receiving $39,000 worth of optical goods.

Mansolilli was arrested by Boston and Wilmington police May 9 when they raided a Wilmington cottage and allegedly found optical goods consisting of rims and lenses.

He was arraigned on the charge in Woburn court May 10 and had his case continued until May 17, and then until today. Antonio Drinkwater of Somerville supplied the bail in the form of bankbooks for Mansolilli.

Following his failure to appear before Judge Alfred W. Sartorelli, a capias was issued for his arrest. He has also been indicted by the Middlesex grand jury.

Gale With Thunderstorm Uproots Brookline Trees

Accompanied by a wind that reached gale-like proportions in Brookline to uproot 13 trees in the vicinity of Griggs Field, thundershowers swept over Greater Boston today to bring relief from the torrid, record-breaking heat wave.

The freak wind that accompanied today's rain uprooted three trees in Marion terrace, ten more around the corner in Griggs rd. adjoining the public playground. Other sections of th town failed to experience the gale-like wind.

However, the weatherman predicted a clear week-end with slowly rising temperatures prevailing on Sunday. Fresh northerly to northeast winds, he said, would drive the rain clouds by tomorrow.

Normal May weather returned to the city and New England as the wind shifted into the east accompanied by showers and thunderstorms which dropped the temperature from a sweltering 92 to the low 60's.

The record reading was the highest here in 39 years, but when the break came it came fast. In 20 minutes, with the arrival of Boston's famed east wind, the mercury dropped 18 degrees. Rain brought a further drop during the night.

Although thunder showers skipped Boston, lightning struck in Worcester, southeastern Massachusetts and in Rhode Island.

Boys' Town Asks For Lifer, 12

WAYNESBORO, Ga., May 24 (AP)—Robert Lee Messex, 12-year-old Georgia life termer, will get a new start in Boys' Town if state officials heed an appeal from the Rev. Fr. E. J. Flanagan, founder of Nebraska's famed community for underprivileged youths.

Burke County Atty. Preston B. Lewis disclosed that Father Flanagan had written his office, offering to take in the slender farm boy convicted of killing his father, William Messex, in resentment over a whipping.

"It may be," the priest wrote, "that the lad's welfare could be better served by admission to Boys' Town. We would gladly place our facilities at the disposal of the court."

Lewis and Superior Judge A. L. Franklin, who sentenced the boy, said the case was now out of their hands and any action on Father Flanagan's offer would have to be taken by state prison officials or Gov. Eugene Talmadge.

Snatch Thief Robs Roxbury Girl of $8

Miss Grace G. Glora, 25, of St. Alphonsus st., Roxbury, was knocked down and robbed of her handbag containing $8 early today as she was walking along Dorchester ave., South Boston, with Mrs. Katherine Zera, 28.

The young woman was approaching Mrs. Zera's home when a thickset man, dressed in blue overalls, ran up and grabbed for Miss Glora's handbag. Both women tried to fight him off, but Miss Glora was thrown to the sidewalk.

Sisters Rouse 23 in Flat Fire

Two sisters sped through an apartment house to rouse occupants today as a two-alarm fire broke out on Tileston st., Everett. The fire occurred in a lunchroom on the first floor of the Adams Public School and threatened the apartment house next door.

Ida Raguccl, 16, of Appleton st., was on her way to the home of her sister, Mrs. Phyllis Bickford on Tileston st., when she saw flames suddenly burst from the school and then a sharp blast blew out windows on the first floor.

While two boys sounded an alarm, the girl roused her sister, and together both girls awaked members of six families, including 26 persons.

Labor Heads Seek Textile Dispute End

NEW BEDFORD, May 24—Francis P. Fenton, general organizer of the A. F. of L., and other labor officials were expected to arrive today from Washington for a conference designed to "smooth out" the textile labor jurisdictional dispute here.

Involved in the dispute are the New Bedford Textile Council and the New Bedford Central Labor Union. Shearers and cloth room workers at a meeting meanwhile voted to remain out "until such time as they see fit to return."

Relief Rolls Drop In Defense Spurt

Money being poured into national defense today was reflected in a decided drop in the number on relief rolls in Massachusetts.

During April, there were but 45,135 on relief compared to 68,475 in April a year ago and 48,228 the previous month.

Jail for French Pro-British 5th Columnists

CLERMONT - FERRAND, Unoccupied France, May 24 (AP)—A French lieutenant was condemned to death today "in absentia," another to 20 years' imprisonment, and seven other persons in French custody were sentenced to two to five years in prison on charges of plotting to organize a pro-British fifth column at Dakar, French West Africa.

A military court convicted the plotters of trying to prepare the way for a possible second attempt to force a landing in the strategic West African port after a British-backed effort by Gen. de Gaulle's French forces were defeated September 23-24.

The prosecution charged the brains of the ring was artillery Lieut. Jean Montezer. He fled with his wife and children from Dakar to British Gambia last October.

Montezer was described in the indictment as being "very intelligent and well-versed in Islamic questions."

Another lieutenant, named Bertrand, who also fled, was sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment.

Each group of plotters, it was charged, was commanded by an officer or non-commissioned officer.

BERLIN CLAIMS CRETE VICTORY, BRITAIN NEXT

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, May 24—All the western part of Crete is "firmly in German hands," the supreme command announced today, the British fleet has been crippled and routed, and the Nazis have achieved air supremacy over the whole island.

In the eastern part of the island fighting has become "purely localized," the Germans said, and it is "only a question of time" before the Allied defenders are forced to surrender en masse.

News of the successful attack on Crete was accompanied by the statement that invasion of Britain is virtually a certainty, although the eastern Mediterranean may be mopped up before the final, decisive blow is struck.

BRITISH DRIVEN BACK

British defenders of the island apparently have been jammed back to the mountains and beaches in the eastern part.

Authorities indicated today's announcement actually covered Nazi operations in Crete only during the first two days of the fight. Therefore they assumed that further great progress has been made in the last three days, to be announced over the week-end.

In the first public statement issued in the five-day-old battle, coming as a triumphant surprise to the German man-in-the-street, a special communique said:

"Since early on the morning of May 20, German parachutists and air-borne troops have been battling parts of the British army in Crete.

"In a daring attack by air, supported by pursuit, level, and dive-bombing planes, the Germans have taken tactically important points on the island.

WARSHIPS SUNK

"After the landing of further troops, the Germans now hold the western part of the island firmly in their hands.

"The Germans frustrated an attempt by the British fleet to interfere with landings. The Luftwaffe dispersed parts of the British navy, sinking or damaging many warships, and the German air force achieved air supremacy over the whole island.

"All operations are continuing according to plan."

Prime Minister Churchill of Britain, the communique added, "in a recent statement charged that German parachutists landed in New Zealanders' uniforms, and threatened to take measures.

"Should that be the case, it would constitute a violation of international regulations, which Germany then would answer with retaliation on a ten-fold scale against British prisoners."

NO MENTION OF CANEA

While no mention of the capital, Canea, was made in the bulletin, it was assumed that port city in western Crete was in German hands.

(Britain confirmed that the Germans hold a strong position at Maleme airport near Canea, and have been landing reinforcements there.)

The supreme command had withheld announcement of the Cretan campaign until it was able to announce a large measure of triumph.

This news was accompanied with the statement that, as a result of the successful attack on Crete, invasion of Britain is virtually a certainty.

Hints were thrown out, however, that Cyprus, Suez, and Malta may be eliminated as war factors before invasion of Britain is attempted.

Maps are being displayed and articles published showing Crete is a key point for British defenses in the Eastern Mediterranean.

Reports also are published of growing British uneasiness in Cyprus, intensified Axis pressure at Tobruk, North Africa, uselessness of the island of Malta as a naval repair base.

Everything points to the probability that the German public in a day or two will be given in spectacular form a bonquet containing Crete, bordered with strong implications that the position of the British fleet in the Mediterranean no longer is tenable.

British Destroy 14 Nazi Transport Planes

CAIRO, Egypt, May 24 (AP)—British long range fighters have challenged the German air mastery of Crete, combining with bombers from distant bases to destroy at least 14 German transport planes in one day in the spreading battle at the western end of the island, RAF headquarters announced today.

The British acknowledged German forces landed by parachute, transport plane and glider in the five days of the battle are making their main effort to broaden their foothold in the Malemi airdrome.

But, Middle East general headquarters asserted, efforts to land reinforcements by air elsewhere have been "decisively dealt with" and have cost the Germans a high proportion of their air transports.

The RAF indicated the toll of German aircraft may be far higher than the 30 claimed so far—14 reported destroyed yesterday by air attack and 16 said previously to have been downed.

Dail Called In Ulster Draft Fight

DUBLIN, May 24 (AP)—Premier Eamon De Valera today unexpectedly summoned the Dail Eireann, Irish parliament, to mest Monday to hear a sttaement on application of British conscription to the six counties of Ulster, Northern Ireland.

De Valera has opposed conscription in Ulster, which, unlike Eire, is a part of the United Kingdom, because of the number of pro-Eire residents who would be affected.

It was further believed by observers De Valera would elaborate his position regarding Eire's defense and growing economic difficulties.

At the same time, it was reported from Belfast, capital of northern Ireland, that an anti-conscription meting had been called to sign a pledge almost identical to the resolution of 1917 which foiled Britain's attempt to enforce Irish compulsory military service.

DENY CONSCRIPTION RIGHT

(Prime Minister John Miller Andrews of Northern Ireland, who has urged the British government to apply conscription, was in London today with four of his cabinet ministers and chief whip for a conference with Prime Minister Churchill. Churchill has promised a statement to Commons.)

The proposed anti-conscription pledge of Nationalists at Belfast said:

"Denying the right of the Churchill government to enforce compulsory service in Ireland, we pledge ourselves solemnly to one another to resist conscription by the most effective means at our disposal, consistent with the law of God."

Except for Churchill's name, it was the same as the 1917 resolution.

Joseph Cardinal Macrory, archbishop of Armagh and primate of all Ireland, said:

"We are convinced that any such attempt (at conscription) would be d sasirous. Our people have been subjected to the gravest injustice in being cut off by partition from one of the oldest nations in Europe and in being deprived of fundamental rights in their own land.

"In such circumstances, to compel them to fight for oppressors would be likely to rouse them to indignation and resistance, and be regarded by Irishmen, north and south, as an outrage on national feeling."

So far residents of Northern Ireland have served in the British armed forces only by volunteering.

An official Eire statement said:

"Following conferences yesterday between members of the government and of the chief opposition and the Labor parties, the government met today to consider the situation regarding application of conscription to the six counties."

Arrangements were then made to call the Parliament to hear the statement of De Valera, who believes conscription would bring the war even closer to Ireland than it is.

was 75 millimeter or smaller.

FIVE DAYS OF BATTLING

Earlier information had indicated the island's defenders were holding the upper hand as the battle entered its fifth furious and apparently climatic day, primarily because the British fleet had smashed Axis convoys around Crete and thus prevented landings of troops and supplies.

The British were said to be holding a position east of German-held Malemi and sources here said the situation at Candia and Retimo, from which the Nazis were reported thrown yesterday, "seems to be all right."

Most of the Germans have been cleaned out of those two coastal points, informed London circles said, although acknowledging there might be some pockets of resistance left. At Candia, British troops were reported to be collecting supplies dropped by German planes for Nazi troops.

The navy's job of trying to keep sea-borne troops away from Crete's rocky shores can't be "child's play," Britons said, since the navy must have a great deal of difficulty contending with warplanes overhead.

There was no information about German troop landings on other parts of the island than Malemi, but military quarters here said the Nazis probably were still dropping parachutists.

5000 NAZIS DROWN

Dispatches last night from Alexandria said 5000 Germans headed for Crete had drowned in the dark before dawn Thursday when a British naval squadron smashed into a hodge-podge convoy in a three-hour engagement in which an Italian destroyer, two merchantmen and 40 sailing vessels were sunk.

None of this convoy reached Crete, British naval sources declared, and an attempt to land men and material on the eastern tip of the island from the Italian Dodecanese also was said to have been smashed by the British.

Fresh invaders landed from the sky, however, and again the defenders were said to have inflicted heavy casualties as desperate fighting men for whom there is no retreat slugged it out in an endless series of hand-to-hand encounters.

The one danger point—and the British acknowledged it to be a gigantic handicap—was the complete lack of air support, since the RAF was forced to withdraw soon after the battle began, because of lack of adequate bases.

Inadequate air fields and the rough terrain of the embattled island were causing many gliders carrying Nazi troops to crash and kill or injure the occupants, the British reported.

RAF Blasts Cologne, Coast

LONDON, May 24 (AP)—The Royal Air Force blasted the industrial city of Cologne last nigh in its first attack on western Germany since Sunday and also pounded the Nazi-occupied French coast around Boulogne, the British reported today.

Overnight attacks also were delivered by the coastal command on docks at St. Nazaire and airdromes and ports of occupied northwestern France.

A communique said a large merchant ship was set afire by bombers off the Netherlands coast and a tanker was damaged by bomb hits off the west coast of France in daylight operations yesterday.

Only light forces took part in the flights over Germany, authorized sources said, but observers on the Kent coast said sounds rolling across Dover strait indicated the attack on the French coast was fairly heavy.

The German high command acknowledged that buildings were damaged by RAF bombers in Cologne and Duesseldorff, and that a small number of civilians were killed and wounded in various western German localities. It described the attacking forces as weak.

The Nazi air force made numerous successful raids on English airports and attacked one freighter off the coast during the night, the Germans said today.

Heavy explosions and big fires were observed after raids in east-central England and bombs exploded in hangars and on plane parking areas of a southern air field, they said.

Proxy Shoppers Don't Know Their Stuff, Britain Finds

LONDON, May 24 (AP)—The Ministry of Labor, deluged by complaints that "proxy shoppers" don't know a bargain, whether in beets or boots, is about to admit one defeat on the home front.

The idea was to do the shopping for women unable to leave their factory jobs. Members of the WVS, Britain's biggest unpaid women's war organization, including many socialites, accepted the task.

The experiment convinced the WVS shoppers that no woman thinks another can shop as well as she can.

Result: The ministry is considering shorter shifts so factory women can do their own.

Nazi in U. S. to Buy Foreign Oil Fields

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—The Herald Tribune said today that Dr. Kurt Rieth, German diplomat, has been in New York almost two months "charged with the job of buying up rich American-owned oil properties in eastern Europe, now almost valuless to citizens of the United States."

Dr. Rieth, German Minister to Austria at the time of Chancellor Dollfuss' assassination, arrived in the United States March 22, crossing the border at Brownsville, Texas, the Herald Tribune said.

He arrived in Rio De Janeiro on a special mission to Latin America March 8.

FUTURE DESTINATION

The Herald Tribune said that on crossing the American border he gave "as a future destination the office of Walter C. Teagle, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey," in New York City and that he had used Teagle's name as a friend at several banks and financial firms.

The Herald Tribune quoted Rieth as denying he had any official assignment in this country, but reported from other sources:

"That Dr. Rieth's major objective was an attempt to arrange for the sale to the Reich at a cash price of around $25,000,000 the Hungarian subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey known as Maort"

Dr. Rieth asserted he was here to see about some property owned by two sisters, the Herald Tribune said.

STANDARD OIL DENIAL

The Herald Tribune quoted W. A. Farish, president of Standard Oil of New Jersey, as denying that he, Teagle or anyone in authority in his organization knew or had been approached by Dr. Rieth.

The Herald-Tribune quoted Farish as saying his organization had had "inquiries as to whether or not we would sell our German subsidiary and our Hungarian subsidiary. These feelers for sale never developed to any conclusion and we are unable to say whether they were genuine or not."

Standard Oil's German subsidiary has paid almost nothing to its American owners since Hitler came to power, a condition existing among other American-owned German firms.

ABSTENTION COMMITTEE

Farish was quoted as saying that for months his company has had "no control from New York of the operations of these two companies and for years have not been able to get dividends out of these companies."

While in South America, the Herald Tribune said, Dr. Rieth assisted in the formation of the American Abstention Committee, composed of two Japanese, an Italian and a German.

"The real aim of the committee is to hinder the application of the lend-lease bill by every means, from propaganda to more direct methods," the Herald Tribune said.

ROME CLAIMS SINKING OF 4 CRUISERS

ROME, May 24 (AP)—The Italian high command asserted today four British cruisers had been sunk and three others damaged by Italian torpedoes and bombs in four days of fighting in the eastern Mediterranean.

Two of the British cruisers were sunk by torpedoes from Italian surface craft, the communique said, describing them as warships of the 5450-ton Dido class and the 7270-ton Leander class.

The Leander-class ship, it said, split in two.

An Italian submarine was reported also to have sunk a 12,000-ton merchantman in the Atlantic.

(Dido class vessels have eight 5.25-inch guns, six torpedo tubes and lighter weapons and carry a plane. There are 10 of them, built in 1939 and 1940.

(The Leander class, averaging 7000 tons, includes the Achilles and Ajax, which participated in the chasing of the Admiral Graf Spee to her destruction by scuttling at Montevideo; the Orion, the Neptune and the Leander. Their chief armaments are eight 6-inch guns. They have eight torpedo tubes.)

Italian press dispatches reported today artillery fire on the Tobruk and Salum fronts in North Africa, but indicated active land operations against the British there marked time while the Axis concentrated on Crete.

Scouting patrols were reported busy, however, and Axis planes were said to have attacked British troop and transport concentrations in the Salum area.

NAZIS SINK GIANT BRITISH WARSHIP HOOD

survivors from H. M. S. Hood."

Commissioned in 1920, the Hood was armed with eight 15-inch guns. Thus, in armament she was inferior to the new United States 35,000-ton battleship North Carolina, which has 16-inch guns.

The battle off Iceland was the Bismarck's first engagement. She was launched in 1939 and only recently put into active service. She is 972 feet long and carries eight 15-inch guns. Her complement is not known, although it probably is well above 1000.

The Hood probably is the only warship in Britain's navy which could bette the speed and equal the firepower of Germany's new battleships. This might explain her presence in mid-Atlantic, once the German fleet got loose.

With the newly completed 35,000-ton battleships King George V and Prince of Wales, and the battle-cruisers Renown and Repulse, the Hood also was rated as the only British ship which could catch and destroy one of Germany's 10,000-ton pocket battleships.

After the destruction of the Admiral Graf Spee at Montevideo in December, 1939, Germany still had two of these, the Admiral Scheer and the Lutzow (formerly the Deutschland), each capable of doing about 26 knots.

32 KNOTS SPEED

The Bismarck and Tirpitz, however, were estimated by Janes' authoritative work on fighting ships as being able to do 30 knots.

The Hood's speed was about 32 knots, that of the Renown about 32, and the King George V, Prince of Wales and Repulse about 30 knots.

The King George V and Prince of Wales carry lighter guns than the Bismarck and Tirpitz, having only 14-inch armament, but they have ten of these rifles.

The Renown and Repulse carry 15-inch guns, but only six of them.

The battleships Nelson and Rodney pack nine huge 16-inch guns, biggest armament in the British navy, but they do only about 23 knots. Britain's other big battleships, many of them armed with 15-inch rifles, also are too slow compared with the Germans.

Berlin Boasts Hood's Sinking Only Beginning

BERLIN, May 24 (INS)—Destruction of the gigantic British battle-cruiser Hood, mightiest of all the world's warships, in a furious naval battle between strong fleets off Iceland was announced by the German supreme command today.

In the first direct test between Germany's reborn fleet and the traditional power of the British navy, the sleek 35,000-ton Bismarck was credited with sinking the bigger vessel.

Another British battleship was so heavily damaged in this initial challenge to British sea might in the North Atlantic that she was forced to flee.

Loss of life was believed to have been immense.

Climaxing a series of stunning British naval defeats in the Mediterranean and North Atlantic, the battle was described in Germany as the greatest sea engagement since Jutland in the World War. Predictions were that the Nazi navy now would go "all out" to track down and destroy British warships guarding the sea lanes over which American supplies are sent.

Only minor damage was sustained by the German fleet.

MINE PLANTER, FISHING BOAT CREWS SAVED

ROCKPORT, May 24 — Two Coast Guard cutters rescued the crews of a grounded fishing schooner and an army mine planter which struck a submerged object in a heavy fog today about a mile and one-half off Rockport harbor.

The cutters transferred the crew of five from the schooner Rosie P., of Gloucester, and were towing that vessel into Rockport when they came upon the foundering mine planter, U. S. Army L. T. 50, just as her crew of five abandoned her in lifeboats.

After picking up her crew, one of the cutters attempted also to tow the mine planter into Rockport, but she sank inside the harbor.

The Army boat, in charge of Capt. E. J. Vitiecci, struck a submerged object just off Avery's ledge, where the Rosie P., captained by Tony Zapulo of S. Martin st., Boston, had earlier gone aground.

Maj. Bowes Resigns Capitol Theater Post

Leukemia Girl Sinking Fast, Awaits Father

Little Mary Jane Wolf, Brighton's leukemia victim, is moving slowly and inevitably toward what physicians have indicated is an inescapable fate — death from the dreaded disease. Still looking forward to the return of her sailor father, she has become too weak even to play with toys showered on her by sympathetic friends and relatives.

Throughout the day Mary Jane kept murmuring, "Daddy, Daddy" . . . for her father, Joseph, an electrician's mate on the U. S. S. Eberle.

The little eight-year-old girl does not yet know the seriousness of her illness. Her spirits have been buoyed up by the promise of her father to be home by the middle of May.

But the middle of May has come and gone without her dad returning. And the youngster has grown weaker and weaker, as the dread disease tightened its grip.

Her mother, exhausted from maintaining day and night vigil in their basement apartment in Kelton st., also waits anxiously for the word that her husband has reached Boston.

EMERY DEAD AND RUTH IN COMA 24 HOURS, SAYS DR. LEARY

fendant as saying, following a visit from her father and her attorney, Edward Flynn:

"I am sure this all happened on Sunday afternoon. They are of the opinion it happened later. But I was working, and I would have gone to my job on Monday."

There was tension in the courtroom as Dr. Leary again took the stand, and as the government approached the conclusion of its case. It was expected the government might rest later in the day, or at least by Monday, when the defense will swing into action.

HYPOTHETICAL QUESTION

Dr. Leary had concurred yesterday in the opinion of two other medical examiners that Emery met his death by strangulation with a rope applied by other hands than his.

He was questioned by Asst. Dist Atty Edward M. Sullivan, the first query being a lengthy hypothetical question.

DEAD 24-40 HOURS

Q—Assuming that the defendant gave the deceased phenobarbital from Sunday noontime on, to the extent of 90 grains, which he swallowed; and then came a lapse of three hours, when the exhibit rope was applied and knotted on his neck by the defendant, and after hearing Dr. O'Leary's external autopsy finding and knowing that the body of Robert Emery was found dead about 2:25 p. m. Tuesday, and having in mind the conditions in the room, have you an opinion as to the length of time this deceased was dead? A—I have. My opinion is that death was around a minimum of 24 hours and a maximum of 40 hours before the body was found.

Dr. Leary gave as reasons for his opinion the discolorations of the abdomen that he termed "a step in decomposition."

TALKED WITH POLICEWOMAN

Next witness called was Mrs. Lillian Taylor, Boston policewoman. Sullivan questioned her also.

Q—Were you assigned to the Boston Psychopathic Hospital while the defendant was there? A—Yes.

Q—Do you recall the conversation she had with you, following the visit she had with her counsel and father? A—Yes.

Q—What was it? About when did it take place? A—I believe it was about three days after she had been admitted. After her lawyer and her father left she returned to bed and said to me:

"I am sure this all happened on Sunday afternoon. They are of the opinion it happened later. I was working on a position and would have gone to work on Monday. I am sure it happened Sunday afternoon."

Mrs. Taylor then stepped down. Following a bench conference, Sullivan and Defense Atty. Flynn agreed that a money order found in a pocket of Emery's clothing at the morgue, dated Jan. 16 in the amount of $21, to the Universal Credit Co., was in payment of a note for an automobile he bought, could be put into evidence.

Mrs. Lillian Taylor — Maurice Bailey

AGREE ON NUMBERS

Judge Brogna then called a recess and asked Sullivan and Atty. Flynn into his lobby to agree on certain telephone numbers to be presented by the Commonwealth, so that "two hours of examination could be dispensed with."

Following the recess, Judge Brogna addressed the jury:

"As the result of a conference of the court, prosecution and defense counsel, the following has been agreed upon:

"That on Oct. 21, 1940, the defendant, under her name, registered at a lodging house at No. 424 Beacon st., giving her address as Pittsburgh. She stayed there until she moved to 135 Brighton st.

"There has also been agreement on several telephone numbers and telephone calls. It has been agreed that Endicott 2069 is the number of Moore's house, located on Boylston st., Jamaica Plain, and at which house the deceased had an office.

HOME PHONE NUMBERS

"That the number Walnut 4779, which is in Pittsburgh, is the defendant's home; that Walnut 9395 is a drugstore in the neighborhood of the defendant's home.

"That the number Murray Hill 4-3900 is the Hotel Tudor, and Eldorado 5-0300 is the Pickwick Arms.

"It is further agreed that on Sept. 28 there was a telephone call from Endicott 2069 to Walnut 4779. This call cost $5.90 and was charged to the Endicott number.

"On Oct. 9 there was call from Walnut 9395 to Endicott 2069. This call cost $9.20 and was charged to the Endicott number. On that same day Endicott 2069 called Walnut 4779, the charge being $7.55, charged to Endicott. On Oct. 10 Endicott 2069 called Walnut 4779 and that charge of $5.95 was charged to Endicott.

GRAND JURY EVIDENCE

"On Oct. 12 Endicott 2069 called Murray Hill 4-3900 and on Oct. 15 Endicott 2069 to El Dodaro 5-0300."

Asst. Dist. Atty. Sullivan then said:

"May it please the court, there are these witnesses, Edward Derwin of the Joy st. police station.

"Also, Capt. McCarthy, formerly in charge of the homicide squad, and Capt. Donovan, formerly in command of Station 3."

The final government witness was George Keough, court stenographer who took the transcript of evidence during the grand jury hearing that resulted in the indictment.

The complete transcript of the grand jury evidence was offered as evidence.

Sullivan then stood and said:

"The Commonwealth now rests."

Judge Brogna adjourned court until Monday morning.

BLONDE TO TESTIFY

While Atty. Flynn declined to reveal what line the defense would take when he presents testimony Monday, it was generally understood Mrs. Steadman herself would be his most important witness, perhaps the first in her own defense.

It was also expected Dr. J. Stewart Rooney, Harvard pathologist and government witness at the murder trial of Mrs. Jessie Costello at Salem in 1933, would be a medical expert for the defense.

Another was likely to be Dr. Robert C. Fisher of the medical examiner's office, New York city. Both men were constantly at Flynn's side while the government presented in rapid succession its own medical interpretation of how Emery died.

Onion-Starved Britons Get Peak At $12,000 Beauty

LONDON, May 24 (INS)—A single onion—one onion—that was purchased for $12,000 was placed on display in London today.

A whole box of onions brought $137,532.

The onions, now extremely rare in Britain, were raffled off as a feature of greater London's war weapons week which ends today with subscriptions for war bonds and certificates totalling $402,400,000.

Doyle Prosecutor At Preston Trial

Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle was placed in complete charge of the prosecution of James F. Preston for the 1937 murder of Louis Gaeta, Revere racket overlord, today by Atty. Gen. Robert T. Bushnell.

FIRST WEARY WEEK OVER

At the sound of her lover's name, she jerked her head quickly to one side as though the pain were sharp.

And so, the first weary week has come to an end for Ruth, and she will have this afternoon and all day Sunday for rest.

From day to day, she has gained composure, and only once has shown to the public a breakdown into tears.

More and more women are coming to the trial, walking out in the recess for a cigarette, discussing the drama being presented before them, and especially the leading lady.

Women Told to Organize Or Face Conscription

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 24 (AP)—Mrs. John L. Whitehurst of Baltimore, new president of the National Federation of Women's Clubs, called today for organization of the sex to aid in national defense, but to avoid conscription of women which she said was already under consideration.

Telling the federation's board of directors a movement to draft women during the next war was under way, Mrs. Whitehurst said:

"If women are not organized, they are going to have to take what is handed them."

She proposed federation women call in representatives of all other women's groups in their respective counties, choose county coordinators, and through them select state coordinators.

This program would include committees for aviation, so women might prepare to take over ground work; consumer problems, to meet the demands for substitutes, including those for products which would "go to South America;" agriculture, to prepare for taking over farm work; industry, preparatory to increased participation in manufacture, nutrition and first aid.

Mrs. Sadie Orr Dunbar of Portland, Ore., retiring president, in her farewell address to the board urged the women cultivate group consciousness because "great things are going to be asked of us soon." She said she would return to her position as executive secretary of the Oregon Tuberculosis Ass'n, from which she took a three-year furlough to serve as federation president.

The board elected Mrs. Charles L. Fuller, wife of a Brockton, Mass., newspaper publisher, chairman of the budget committee, which handles the federation's annual $95,000 expenditures.

Ship Owners' Parley Called

WASHINGTON, May 24 (INS)—The Maritime Commission today called a conference of ship owners in the Atlantic and Gulf coastwise trades to determine what portion of these vessels may be made available for use in aiding Great Britain.

In a telegram to all owners and operations of such ships, authorized representatives were asked to be present at the meeting Tuesday at the Maritime Commission in Washington.

The survey, it was said, will cover vessels which may be available to transport strategic commodities in both short and long sea voyages.

Season's First Band Concert Tomorrow

The opening band concert of the season by the Massachusetts WPA music project at Parkman Bandstand, Boston, Common, will be presented tomorrow at 6:30 p. m. by Conductor William Barrington-Sargent.

Concerts will be given every week day from noon until 2 o'clock, except on Saturday. Sunday concerts will be from 6:30 to 8:30 p. m.

BOSTON After DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

ANCIL HOFFMAN'S BLEAT over the radio will rank with the late Joe Jacobs's famous: "We wuz robbed." . . . Said Ancil, after his charge Buddy Baer had been disqualified for not coming out for the seventh round: "It was the rawest thing I ever seen." . . . Bill Stern's hasty shutting-off of Ancil, with the remark that the Hoffman complaint was "only one man's opinion," seemed ill-founded . . . Ancil was citing only one man's opinion, his own . . . Because Buddy Baer immediately addressed the radio audience in a good-humored manner, and paid a generous tribute to Joe Louis.

A NEW REASON FOR a horse winning a race was heard at the Suffolk Downs Paddock Club after White Time had won the sixth race . . . Joe Doyle, the North Shore lawyer, conceived the alibi for White Time, which usually quits to a dead stop before the finish of a six-furlong heat . . . "The east wind did it," said Attorney Doyle . . . "With a strong wind like that at his back, the horse kept on going" . . . (The wind had hauled to the east just as the nags reached the barrier.) Novices . . . Horses with faint hearts dislike facing a strong head wind in the final stretch charge . . . Sheldon Fairbanks' horse Range Dust, which is not faint-hearted—runs best on a windless day, although the colt's recent attempts have not been too encouraging whatever the weather condition.

MR. FAIRBANKS, BOB BOTTOMLEY, Ernie Soucy and Ed Gallagher, part of the high-powered Wonder'and Para braintrust, by the way, all paid a courtesy call last night to the Raynham track, which had a tremendous opening . . . Russ Murray and his associates are talking about a possible hundred-thousand dollar nightly average at the Bristol County racing plant . . . Such an average would exceed all previous records for a meeting in the downstate county, but the enthusiasm of the premiere augurs the possibility, it was agreed.

IT WILL BE INTERESTING to observe the exact effect the back-to-work trend will have on day and night mutuel betting this season . . . The horse-racing plants have found that Saturday and holiday crowds are bigger than previous years, and that a slight increase also prevails . . . But it's the Saturday crowds which are causing the all-important daily averages to soar . . . With dog racing, it is thought that the increase will be on every night occurrence . . . Thousands who have returned to payrolls, after several very dull years, will be now enjoying their nightly leisure with a few shekels in their pockets . . . This may turn out to be the best year since dog-racing was voted in by the electorate in 1934.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: The roster of the Ritz Roof's all-colored revue, the first in the hotel's history, will include Count Basie's orchestra, Hazel Scott, and the Mills Brothers . . . It will follow the current Copacabana Revue . . . Peggy Fears made a quick hit at the Cocoanut Grove, and the former wife of Jimmy Walker's pal, A. C. Blumenthal, will be retained for at least two weeks . . . Blumenthal was one of the boy-wizards of the booming '20's . . . It was he who put the Fox Films sale together, and his commissions on this and other theatrical deals made him a millionaire . . . "Bloomy" is now reported in Mexico . . . The authorities wanted him as a witness in a New York income tax case recently, but the pint-sized financier pleaded inability to answer a summons . . . And what, incidentally, ever happened to the expression "cash on the barrelhead?"

CARLETON BATES, the marvelous piano-playing orchestra leader, has sold a composition entitled "Who Am I to Say?" to Ethel Waters . . . The number will be restricted for the dusky singer's especial use . . . This same Carlton Bates is a Beacon Hill product who has an excellent chance of becoming a very important young man in popular music . . . His wizardry with the piano is compared freely with that of Eddie Duchin . . . But Carlton has an undoubted gift for composition . . . He has writen a novelty tune, "Good Enough Street," which has a philosophic turn to its lyrics, that is very intriguing . . . Handicapped by his inability to ambulate without the help of a cane and a crutch, Carlton is playing piano with, and leading a small unit now at the Lenox Blue Train . . . Charlie Goldberg would be doing his publishing firm a favor (in this opinion) if he cocked an ear over the Bates shoulder while Carlton ran over some of his own stuff on the piano.

ANOTHER YOUNG MUSICIAN whose career should get the necessary lift through his relatives alone is Ted Leavitt, who is in town visiting with his mother . . . Ted's uncle is Meyer Davis, the society-millionaire band-master, and another relative is Pierre Monteux, conductor of the San Francisco symphony orchestra.

Boston, Mass.

Dear Mr. Meyers,

With 50 cottage sites sold and 15 new cottages under construction, Oldham Village at Pembroke, the opening sale is certainly meeting with grand response from the people of New England.

This sale at Oldham started two weeks ago. Our advertising has run in the Saturday Record and the Sunday Advertiser both week-ends.

You may be certain that we are extremely well pleased with the results, and shall continue to use your medium regularly.

Very truly yours,
Charles E. Docker

Oldham Village Lots Sell at Record Speed

With 50 lots sold and 15 cottages now under construction Oldham Village is undoubtedly the most popular lake resort in all New England, with the beginning of the third week of public sale.

Formerly the exclusive Oldham Gun Club, situated in Pembroke, only 29 miles from Boston, the early sales have far exceeded the expectations of the developers.

Have you visited Oldham Village?

If you haven't and if you are interested in an attractive lot of land for yourself and your family, near a lake that offers every known advantage, then don't hesitate. There are choice lots to be had now, but the enthusiastic response of the past few weeks indicates a continuance of interest. When real estate men will visit a lake shore development and buy lots then you just know that it is good. More than one or two well known Boston real estate men have already done this.

Oldham is typical of many other "sudden realizations" that come to the American people. Thousands have always wanted their own cottages or camp on a lake, near water for bathing or fishing or boating, but they've always let it go for just another summer. In the meantime, money has been spent each and every summer for rent, and suddenly the realization of "what could have been" strikes home. But Oldham Village has struck a responsive chord in the hearts of many of these life-loving folks, who want to enjoy themselves and the natural beauties of their country.

The lots are all covered with giant pine trees that tower over the development and afford cool evenings all through the summer. Clean beaches and clear water make bathing a pleasure and good fishing is assured. An island somewhere around the middle of the lake has been sub-divided into water front lots and can be had very reasonably by one who is looking for something different. A large pier has been provided by the developers and a motor boat is available for transportation to and from the island.

Globe Burlesque Ends Big Season

The Globe's burlesque swan-song, singing its final note of the season with tonight's late show, is the occasion for turnaway business.

To Stella Mills, known from coast to coast as burlesque's "Dixie Girl," fell the honor of this precedent-breaking two-day engagement yesterday and today. She has been a big success, and with the resumption of burlesque here in the fall should return to find many new fans in the audience.

Zorita Returns to Howard As 'French Frolics' Star

The Old Howard management believe they have the show of shows in "French Frolics," new Zorita-starring travelling burlesque production due there Monday.

ZORITA
Returns to Old Howard

The extraordinarily attractive Zorita, who comes here from an extended Chicago night-club engagement, promises an unusual and arresting dance routine.

Providing comedy that is as broad as a barn-door but funny, will be a brace of funsters, namely "Stinkie" Fields, "Shorty" McAllister, Fred Binder and Jack Rosen.

Tantalizing Sally O'Day, Diane Johnson, Lillias Cairns, once featured in some of America's finest ballet troupes, and Dorothy DeHaven are all as talented as they are good to look at. They are prominently featured in the forthcoming revue.

Others in the large cast are Wee Willie Dee, Dolores and Shaw, Bert Saunders, Lola Lee, Bernie Miller, the Coburn Sisters, Pat Paige and Chic Hunter, as well as the chorus of 30 song-and-dance girls.

Next Thursday's holiday eve midnight show, starting at 11:30, will feature some special acts along with the regular stage revue. This will not interfere with the regular Friday midnight show.

BEACON'S FILMS

"So Ends Our Night," with Fredric March and Margaret Sullavan, is now playing on Beacon screen. Teamed with it is "Tall, Dark and Handsome,"

Globe Swings To Film Policy

The Globe tomorrow inaugurates its summer policy of double-feature weekly screen bills with the French film, "The Virgin Bride," starring Danielle Darrieux, and "School for Husbands," with England's favorite leading man, Rex Harrison.

Made in France under the title, "Mlle. MaMere," the Darrieux screen vehicle is a gay and racy dish of screen souffle, having to do with a beautiful girl who marries an old man to avoid an arranged marriage and then falls in love with her step-son.

"School for Husbands" also treats gaily such serious matters as marriage, cheating wives and plotting husbands.

"THE MAN WHO CAME TO DINNER," who would be nobody but Alexander Woollcott, has nothing but disgust for his undecorate nurse, expertly portrayed by Janet Fox. (Colonial)

NEW YORK, May 24 (INS)—Fritz Kreisler, internationally famous violinist and composer, has recuperated a owell from injuries suffered when struck by a truck a month ago, that today he no longer is considered critically ill at Roosevelt Hospital.

'Proud Valley' Interesting Film

By PEGGY DOYLE

Although the war does not impinge on the story of "Proud Valley," British producer Michael Balcon's latest film to come to this country and the Civic Repertory screen, its shadow hangs over the production.

And yet, handicapped as it necessarily was by a most modest budget and the lack of an experienced cast other than the great American baritone, Paul Robeson, it emerges as an interesting film, well acted and eloquent of the homely, honest folk of the little mining town of Blaendy, in South Wales.

The locale is similar to that of Richard Llewellyn's best selling novel, "How Green Was My Valley", another small Welsh village entirely dependent on the local coal mine for existence.

Robeson, playing David Goliath, comes to Blaendy looking for work. He is unsuccessful until he hears the miners singing in preparation for the annual contest and joins in. Dick Parry, the leader of the chour, induces him to take a job in the mines and to compete with them for the national competition of choral societies at Eistedfodd.

Robeson's magnificent voice, singing "Deep River," "All Through the Night," that world-famous Welsh lullaby, and other old favorites, gives the picture its greatest pull. And the chorus is thrilling to hear, with young Simon Lack playing the principal role. Edward Chapman and Rachel Thomas adding their splendid voices to the ensemble. The choral group, one of Wales' best, is accompanied by some fine Welsh music.

Liver Dishes That Please

By MARTHA LEE

LIVER DESERVES a place in the family diet because it is a valuable food for everybody.

It is especially good for growing children who need to manufacture good red blood cells, and for this reason should be served frequently. At least once a week may not be too often for children who are anemic. When chicken, duck, goose, turkey, or rabbit is on the family menu, the children should have the livers.

Liver and kidneys, too, contain a large amount of iron, but that is not their only claim to distinction. Part of the remarkable value of these meats in preventing and curing some types of anemia is due to the copper they contain. Still other substances, scientists think, may also contribute to their use for this purpose.

When the price of calves' liver makes it a luxury, beef, pork and lamb liver may be used. These are less expensive, and are practically as valuable as calves' liver nutritionally. Price varies for the kind of liver, due solely to demand. Calves' liver, because highest in demand is also more expensive. You can produce exactly the same dish at a fraction of the cost by using lamb, pork, or beef liver.

There is a very delicate flavor to liver if it is properly prepared. Many people form a prejudice against it or fail to appreciate the flavor because it has been poorly cooked. It may be very easily overdone by cooking a little too long or by using a temperature slightly too high.

LIVER AND BACON

1 lb. calve's, beef, lamb or pork liver, sliced thin
½ lb. bacon.

Place bacon in cold frying pan and let fry slowly until evenly cooked and lightly crisp. Remove to warm place until liver is cooked. Remove skin and veins from thin sliced liver and dip in flour. Fry in the bacon fat until lightly browned, about 5 to 6 minutes. Do not over cook. Serve hot with bacon on top. Makes 4 servings.

CASSEROLE OF WHOLE LIVER

1½ lbs. beef liver (1 piece)
1 carrot
½ onion
3 slices bacon
½ cup water
2 bouillon cubes
1 tbsp. catsup
½ tsp. salt

Dip liver in boiling water for 2 minutes. Cut bacon into 1 inch lengths and place in a frying pan. Dip the liver in flour and brown it with the bacon cubes. Place in a casserole, add the vegetables cut in ¼ inch cubes and pour over it the hot water in which is dissolved the bouillon cubes and catsup. Bake in a covered casserole for 1¼ hours in a 325 deg. F. oven. Slice for serving. Makes 6 servings.

LIVER LOAF

1½ lbs. lamb liver (2 livers)
4 slices bacon
1 onion
¾ cup chopped parsley
2¼ cups soft bread crumbs
2 eggs
2 tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper

Let slices of liver stand in hot water for 10 minutes, then grind along with onion, parsley and bacon. Add unbeaten eggs, crumbs and seasonings and pack firmly into loaf pan. Bake 1 hour at 350 deg. F. Serve with tomato sauce and accompany with escalloped potatoes or whole creamed potatoes. Fills one loaf pan. Makes 6 to 7 servings.

RAGOUT OF KIDNEYS

6 veal or 9 lamb kidneys
3 tbsp. flour
3 tbsp. butter
1½ cups stock
1¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
¼ cup currant jelly
2-3 cup red wine

Wash kidneys, split, remove skin and fat, and soak in cold salted water ½ hour, drain and slice thin. Stir flour into butter and brown slightly; add stock gradually and cook 5 minutes, stirring until thickened. Add kidneys and seasonings, and cook 10 minutes, or until tender; add jelly, beaten slightly with fork, and wine, heat and serve at once. Wine may be omitted and 1½ tsp. horseradish and 1¼ tablespoons lemon juice added with jelly. Makes 6 servings.

Town and Travel Checks

SUMMER town suits are news . . . because it wasn't so long ago that you'd have had to swelter in tweeds or thin wools if you were suit-minded. But now you can get a marvelous mixture of cotton and rayon and Charles Armour uses just such a fabric for this smart new model, done in checks and trimmed with white pique. The pique is actually a very clever button-on blouse, practical for laundering, and suggesting substitutions to fit your mood and your hat. —ANNICE BRINK.

Love and Marriage

He Enlists; What of Others?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I went with a young man steady for over a year. Last November he joined the army and is stationed in another state.

It was my idea that he go into the service, so I'm wondering if I ought to wait until he returns, three years from now, or go out with other boys. He asked me to marry him when he comes home and I promised to wait.

Don't you think almost anything could happen in this time, and that his feeling might change? We're both only 18, and I don't like the idea of sitting at home all this time waiting for him to come out of the army. He's a dependable boy and I've never had cause to doubt his word. But I would like to go out with other boys just for company's sake.

VIRGINIA.

As it was your suggestion that the young man join the Army, it seems to me that you are not without a certain obligation to him, especially since you promised to wait for him.

Why not write him and say, since you're both only 18, doesn't he think it pretty young to make difinite promises, and that you are suggesting that he enjoy himself at those hostess parties where they all dance, and that you will go out with other boys occasionally. Eighteen is pretty young to be engaged.

Marriage Is Not Cure for Drinking

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I've been going with a young man off and on for close to five years. He is 23 years old and has always been a heavy drinker. He is very dear to me and has asked me to marry him several times, but I hesitate on account of his drinking. He says I'm the only one who can help him. Would my love, happiness and devoted care sober him up for good? Or would I be making a mistake to marry him before he's cured

IN DOUBT.

Many trusting women have hoped that love and devoted care would help to make a drinking man sober. But there is nothing conclusive about the experiment, which seems to have met with more failure than success.

A man must have the necessary character to combat this habit, and I've heard that Alcoholics Anonymous has done wonders with men and women who are willing to co-operate. I will send you the address of the central headquarters who can tell you the chapter nearest to you.

This information will be forwarded to you upon receipt of a self-addressed, three-cent stamped envelope.

You Can Be Beautiful

Luxurious Plastic Dresser Set Ideal Gift for Bride

By ARLINE GOULD

SOME of the new liquid-clear plastics have certainly forged ahead in this style-conscious world . . . and it's no wonder when you see what modern designers have done with this wonderful stuff, which looks so nebulous yet is so durable . . . like imprisoned water, and tinted in prismatic jewel tones.

A gift for a bride which has a touch of the glamour and luxury sure to correspond with the most exciting time of her life . . . is a wonderful new dresser set made of a jewel-light plastic.

It's a wonderfully decorative note for her new house or apartment, which fits any period or type . . . and goes with a color scheme as thought it were custom made! You can always play safe, you know, and get the gleaming crystal set which some folks think is the most beautiful of them all . . . in case you're not too sure about colors.

There's ruby, sapphire and emerald from which to choose, besides the crystal. Each piece is beautifully done . . . the mirror is an exquisite square shape, with its slim, long handle and fine, beveled glass on both sides. And the matching hairbrush is slim, with fluted back and that marvelous new "prolon" bristle which is so resilient, strong yet gentle on the hair and scalp.

A clever idea is the complete "wardrobe" of grooming aids which may be assembled. The bride will undoubtedly want to add matching hand or nail brushes, or a complexion brush, to go with her gift set.

For shopping information on these luxurious plastic dresser sets, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ware-Preston Bridal June 7

Dorothy Preston of Seven Pines, Hamilton, and Charles Pickard Ware of Milton, have completed plans for their marriage which is to take place in Christ Church, Hamilton, Saturday, June 7.

The vivacious bride-to-be will be attended by her sister, Mrs. Farley Wilder Wheelwright, who is coming on from New York to be matron of honor. The bridesmaids group will include a number of prominent North Shore friends of the bride—Katharine Winthrop, Mrs. George C. Clement and Mrs. William T. Kemble . . . also Mrs. William Almy, Jr., of South Westport, Marian Ware of Milton and Mrs. John T. Smithies of Ardmore, Pa.

Donald Ware, who is stationed at Camp Hulen, Texas, is coming on to be his brother's best man. The usher staff will include Pierre S. DuPont 3d of Rockland, Del., G. Philip Lynch of Cedarhurst, L. I., Alfred Yardley of Darient, Ct., Frederick R. Moseley, Jr., New York, Robert R. Borden, Fall River; James E. Hollis, Worcester; Roger Martin, Milton; and C. Alan Hudson, New York.

Miss Preston, daughter of Mrs. B. Preston Cutler of Hamilton, will be given in marriage by her brother, Richard Preston. The reception will be held in the gardens at Seven Pines, and the couple plan to make their home on the North Shore.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

THE WEATHER MAN evidently gave Cornelia Baker an advance tip on the heat wave . . . for when she chose the beautiful gown in which she is being married today she selected filmy white tulle which is ideal for the unexpected summery weather which is promised to continue for the week end . . .

Fashioned of yards of tulle, the gown has a deep flounce of lace bordering the long train, and a fischu of lace adorning the front of the bodice . . . A simple tulle veil and a small round bouquet of white roses encircled in a frill of white lace, completed her picturesque costume . . .

The pretty blonde bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Colcord Baker of Perrin rd., Brookline, is exchanging marriage vows with James Phinney Baxter 4th, son of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Baxter 3d, of Williamstown . . .

CORNELIA BAKER of Brookline, and one of her bridesmaids, Anstiss Dana of Cambridge, enjoy a tete-a-tete with a friend at a recent party. Today is Cornelia's wedding day. From now on she will be known as Mrs. James Phinney Baxter, 4th, of Chicago. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore C. Baker of Brookline.

The four o'clock ceremony at the Church of the Redeemer, Chestnut Hill, is being followed by a garden reception at the Baker residence . . .

The bride's sisters, Augusta Peabody Baker and Fracnes Prescott Baker, are serving as maids of honor, and the bridesmaid group includes Merrill Bunce, Anne T. Godfrey, Mrs. Benjamin C. Giifford, Celia Hubbard, Gail Neilson, Anne and Natalie Simpkins, cousins of the bride . . .

Attendants in Flowered Chintz Gowns

THE ATTENDANTS are wearing colorful gowns of flowered chintz in tones of purple and lilac, with large purple straw hats trimmed with flowers . . . Their bouquets are of purple iris, pansies and lilies of the valley . . .

Augustus Thorndike 3d is attending Mr. Baxter as best man and the usher staff includes a number of the bridegroom's Harvard '41 classmates . . . In the group are Samuel Reed, J. Couper Lord, J. H. Dick Macy, George G. Haydock, Lawrence H. Butt, Peter H. Hazard, Rodman Townsend, Theodore C. Baker Jr., Arthur B. Baxter and Stephen Baxter . . .

Following their wedding trip the couple will live in Chicago . . . Cornelia, a deb of the 1938-39 season, graduated from the Winsor School and belongs to the Junior League and Vincent Club . . . Her bridegroom's clubs at Harvard include Hasty Pudding, D. K. E. and Fly . . .

Darling-Jones Ceremony Today

WHITE GARDEN FLOWERS and tall tapers decorate the beautiful altar in Leslie Lindsey Memorial Chapel for the marriage this afternoon of Beverly Marshall Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Marshall Jones of Boston and "Ashuelot," Fitzwilliam, N. H. . . .

Beverly becomes the bride of David Lane Darling, son of Mrs. David H. Darling of Cambridge, at a picturesque ceremony performed by Rev. Dr. Phillips Endicott Osgood . . . and later she and her bridegroom are receiving the best wishes of their friends at a small wedding reception in the Frances Room of the Women's Republican Club . . .

The bride is wearing her mother's wedding gown of accordion pleated ivory satin . . . Made with a high standing collar of lace, the gown also has a lace yoke and short train . . . Her veil of heirloom family lace is appliqued with rose point . . .

Faith Jones, sister of the bride, is serving as maid of honor and only attendant . . . Her gown is of pastel blue marquisette with which she is wearing a small hat of pink roses and carrying pink summer flowers . . .

Couple Will Live in Ashburnham

MRS. JONES is receiving in a light blue ensemble with a white hat and flowers, and Mrs. Darling has chosen a pale lavender gown with violet hat and orchid corsage . . .

After cutting her wedding cake and tossing her bouquet the bride is changing into a going away suit of navy blue with blue and white accessories . . . She and Mr. Darling will be at home after June 15 on Chapel st., Ashburnham . . .

John Frederick Bradstreet of Cambridge is attending to best man duties and the ushers are F. Brampton Parker of Cambridge, Charles Little of Boston, Hamilton Gray of New York and Nelson Farquhar of West Hartford, Ct. . . .

Busy Day For New Debs

Boston debutantes will steal a little of the social spotlight away from brides on Saturday, June 7, the busiest day of the month-of-brides as far as our calendar is concerned.

It is also to be a busy day for debutantes who will be provided with a fair sample of what the traditional debutante whirl is all about. Beginning with a luncheon at the Cohasset Golf Club for Peggy Benedict, Jean Hendrie and Kitty Binnian, the girls will have a full day and evening of partying.

The Cohasset Golf Club party is being given by Mrs. George Benedict, Jr., Mrs. Percy Hendrie and Mrs. Walter Binnian, all of Cohasset. From there the debs will motor to The Country Club for the tea dance at which Dorothy Brown and Alice Minot will be presented. This party, at which members of the debutante crowd and their Harvardian escorts will trip the light fantastic from 4 to 7, is being given by Mrs. Laurence Allyn Brown of Marlboro st. and Mrs. William Minot of Cambridge.

The evening schedule will be taken up by a debutante dance on the North Shore, plans for which are incomplete as yet.

Handasyde Whitney, all of Boston. Mr. Irving is a great-great-nephew of Washington Irving. He graduated from Harvard in 1939.

A New Figure for Spring

Registered U. S. Patent Office

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Having had my eyes opened to how supple a teen age girl can be, I now strongly suspect that most of you youngsters are settling down before you grow up. Can you do a handspring, turn a cartwheel, do the split, or kick higher than your head? Do you ice skate, or even roller skate?

Betty Atkinson, lovely drum majorette in the show "It Happens On Ice," does all those things on ice skates without missing a twirl of her baton. Compared with her, the general run of the girls the same age look stiff and stodgy.

You can't do acrobatics without getting into condition first, so don't attempt any stunts your creaky joints are not equal to. But if you want to feel wonderful, and turn into a knockout for looks, you might take a few pointers from Betty.

First of all, don't worry about developing bulgy muscles. Betty has been working at exercise, sometimes for hours daily, since the age of four or thereabouts when she started ballet dancing.

Later she went on to baton twirling and a couple of years ago took up ice skating. She is as streamlined as they come: Bust measurement, 33 inches; waist, 24 inches; hips, 34 inches. She weighs 108 pounds for her height of five feet three.

TAP-DANCES DAILY

The secret of preventing over-development of the muscles, she says, is to balance exercises in which the muscles are contracted with the kind that stretches the muscles. She always follows half an hour of ballet with the same amount of tap dancing.

She also learned something which the average older woman could practice to great advantage. She learned to use only the muscles actually required for work and to keep tension from spreading to other muscle groups not needed at the time.

You may think you don't have the time for such a routine, but you will discover that regular exercise gives you more energy and that means you can get more done in less time. Betty has so much energy that she not only became a skating star, but made such good marks that there is a scholarship waiting for her at the University of Southern California.

Good posture exercises are given in Ida Jean Kain's "Posture Makes the Figure." Please enclose stamped return envelope.

Enjoy Old Cowboy Songs

BONT GO A-WAY, STAY AT HOME IF YOU CAN, STAY A-

Fun to Sing "The Dreary Black Hills"

Carefree as a cowboy, just sittin' on the corral fence, singin'—that's the way you feel when you sing real old cowboy melodies such as "The Dreary Black Hills!" How your gang will take to its Wild West flavor:

"Stay way from that city,
they call it Cheyenne,
For old Sitting Bull or
Comanche Bills,
They will take off your scalp
on the dreary black Hills."

Can't you picture the cowboys lopin' along to "I Ride an Old Paint?" Get out your songbook and try its catchy refrain yourself:

"Ride around little dogies,
Ride around them slow;
For the fury and snuffy are rarin' to go."

Dates, parties, picnics—all are much more fun when you sing the gay cowboy ditties in our 40-page songbook, Western Heart Throbs. Gives 26 favorites, complete with words, music, piano accompaniments, guitar diagrams. Includes "Red River Valley," "The Old Chisholm Trail."

Send 15 cents in coins for our songbook, Western Heart Throbs, to Boston Evening American Home Institute, 109 West 19th st., New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of songbook.

BOSTON'S rigid and widely criticized one-hour automobile parking regulation will be relaxed.

Beginning Monday and for a month thereafter, motorists may leave their cars for two hours in the intown streets.

If the new rule proves popular, it will be continued indefinitely.

At long last the city fathers are showing a little common sense.

Belatedly, they seem to be waking up and facing the fact that Boston is the shopping capital of the entire New England area.

Henceforth when a woman comes here to buy a hat she will have time to obtain the one she wants.

When she returns to her automobile she will not find a summons to court hanging on the door.

She will go away with a feeling of satisfaction and a willingness to come back to Boston when she needs another hat.

Why the one-hour parking plan was adopted in the first place defies explanation.

Where is the woman who can select shoes, a dress, a coat, accessories and obtain a hair wave in sixty short minutes?

What man can visit his bank, drop in on his lawyer, chat with a friend and eat lunch in the same time?

If there are such gifted persons we never have had the pleasure of making their acquaintance.

OUR CITY GOVERNMENT and particularly our Police Department and Traffic Commission ought to realize that this is the year 1941.

The automobile is here to stay.

Shoppers are going to use automobiles to get to stores.

Silly rules and regulations will not deter them or keep them away.

The logical and sensible thing to do is to be as practical as the oldtime storekeepers who provided hitching-posts for customers who drove to their doors in carriages.

We have many out-moded buildings which ought to be torn down so that the land on which they stand could be given over to municipally owned and controlled parking lots.

In congested areas we might erect ramp garages in which shoppers could park their cars for ten cents an hour or 50 cents a day.

We might profitably consider plans for developing the Common to make parts of it available for parking.

It is generally conceded that every automobile-owning family in the six States of New England prefers to make its important purchases in the Boston stores, where prices are more attractive and merchandise is more varied.

Consequently, instead of wasting their time on programs that are calculated to keep people out of Boston, all our elected and appointed officials should do their utmost to make it pleasant and worth while for shoppers to come here.

The two-hour parking rule is a good start.

But it is clearly not enough.

Authorities will have to put on their thinking caps and do vastly more.

ANOTHER THREAT

to Boston and Massachusetts business is the misnamed Tax on Luxuries Bill, which some misguided souls will probably try to rush through the Legislature in the closing days of the current session.

Actually, the measure has little to do with luxuries.

It is the same old, brazen Sales Tax that has been repeatedly rejected in this State.

Like its predecessors, it seeks to burden the little fellow, such as the girl who is trying to support an aged parent on a $20-a-week wage and the boy who is serving in the Army for $21 a month.

Its only difference lies in the fact that it is bolder and more harsh.

Previous Sales Taxes called for a levy of two per cent.

This one demands THREE per cent.

With such legislation on the statute books, trade that belongs in Massachusetts is bound to shift to other States.

If a Bay Stater can save money by doing his buying in New Hampshire, Maine, Vermont, Rhode Island or Connecticut, he will do so.

All States which have foolishly experimented with Sales Taxes have seen business flow to their neighbors.

Nobody will permit himself to be the victim of an unjust levy if he can help himself.

That was one of the principal reasons why New York and Pennsylvania did not renew their Sales Taxes when they expired.

Maryland, Georgia and Kentucky suffered similarly and abandoned the tax before it ruined them.

New Jersey tried the Sales Tax for a few months and quickly repealed it.

The people of Massachusetts want FEWER taxes, not NEW and MORE INIQUITOUS ones.

And they certainly do not want to see business and jobs lost to other States.

On The Side

Well, well, the world must turn upon its axis,
And all mankind turn with it, heads or tails,
And live and die, make love and pay our taxes
And as the veering wind shifts, shift our sails.

ONE REASON I have faith in the majority of Americans is because they love dogs. Seems a "sappy" remark. But hear me out. People admire in others qualities they themselves would most like to possess. Consider the qualities of a dog—courage, loyalty, gratitude, friendliness, sense of humor and so on. People admiring such characteristics must themselves be fundamentally good.

SAID HESS: Less than three weeks before Rudolph Hess flew to Scotland he sent the following to Adolf Hitler as a birthday greeting: "The blessings of the Almighty which have been so plentifully and so conspicuously bestowed upon the German people since you have been their Fuehrer will continue to rest on Germany. Our wishes for you are coupled with the prayer: 'Oh, Almighty God, protect our Fuehrer!'"

ASIDES: In Nazi Germany Frau Gertrud Klink has charge of "Bevoelkerungs-politik," which translated means "populating policy." Frau Klink's duty is to see no German women practice birth control. Any woman who has not had a child in 18 months is questioned as to the reason by one of Frau Klink's representatives . . . Does your wife go with you when you buy a suit? Does your wife take your weekly salary and give you an allowance? When going out with the boys, do you tell your wife you are going or ask her if it is all right? Do you hesitate when at a party to become a little chummy with some of the glamorous feminine guests? Don't answer, sir. Am just calling to your attention some of the questions in a "Are You a Man or a Mouse?" quiz.

SIDELIGHTS: It has been wisely observed that "the real test of business greatness lies in giving opportunities to others." If you are running a business, sir, think that over . . . Though thousands of non-Americans have been employed by the United States Government to work on the Panama Canal no such job has ever been given to a Japanese . . . In Hitler's "Mein Kampf" he mentions women only twice, in two small paragraphs, one on marriage; one on social diseases.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q. At present who is the world's most celebrated red-haired woman? A. How about Madame Lupescu, friend of ex-King Carol of Rumania? Q. Were you born in New York City or Brooklyn? A. Was born in New York but brought up in Brooklyn. However, there is nothing hyphenated about me; I am a 100 per cent Brooklynite and have been a Dodger fan since the age of seven. Q. Is there on any major city police force in the United States a policeman with a beard? A. If there is, sir, I have never seen him.

CONFIDENTIAL: Rudolf Hess is a vegetarian and neither smokes nor drinks . . . The thoroughbred Broker's Tip won but one race in his career and that was the Kentucky Derby . . . Soldiers of United States Army should be furnished with free cigarettes classified as rations . . . All aluminum produced in 1942 will be used in the armament industry. So cling to what aluminum you have, ma'am. May eventually become worth more than you paid for it . . . Many of the bombs the Nazi raiders drop on England turn out to be duds. When opened they are found to contain notes from employes of the ammunition factories in Czecho-Slovakia which read: "We are doing all we can to help Britain." In occupying the countries of Poland, Norway, Holland and Czecho-Slovakia, Hitler has taken hold of some very hot potatoes. Like the Chinese, these are people who can never be wholly conquered.

DIXIE LEE, WIFE OF BING CROSBY
"Youngest Looking Mother of Four Children"

REPORTS of red-haired married couples continue to pour in. All the wedded red-heads seem happy and all have red-headed children. No doubt it would be something of a sensation if a brunette child turned up in a red-haired family. One carrot-topped pair of married love-birds has seven children. They should make a softball baseball team out of that family and call it the Red-Headed Rascals. I think there should be a Red-Heads of America Association. This could campaign to defeat the belief red-headed people have nasty tempers and spread far and wide the fact that the brick-tops make loving husbands and affectionate wives. It could also battle against blondes and brunettes who dye their hair red and at times give the public a wrong picture of the natural red-heads character. I am not a red-head. But my father was. So I am eligible to membership in the Sons and Daughters of Redheads Association of America.

PASSING BY: Mrs. Bing Crosby. Youngest looking mother of four children I have yet seen. Mrs. Bing is a cute little trick type. When Bing was trying to win her heart, hand, etc., she was known as Dixie Lee. It was to her Mr. Crosby first sang: "I Surrender Dear" . . . Clarke Robinson. Writer. Has just done a magazine article bearing the provocative title: "Do You Buy Hats for Bookmaker's Wives." I can answer in the negative as I have never made a wager with an off-track bookmaker. My belief has always been bookmaking should be legalized and taxed. This will ease the taxpayers burden and make honest men of the bookmakers. And the bookmakers' wives and kiddies, instead of being reticent as to the occupation of the fathers, can say: "Papa is a turf broker."

THOMAS MEIGHAN, the great stage and screen star, was born in Pittsburgh. I left Tom's name off my list of noted Pittsburghers . . . Latest life expectancy figures are, 61 years for men, 65 years for women. Some experts say reason women live longer than men is because they are interested in more things.

MISS LAWRENCE SEES FILM BEAUTY

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, May 24—Gertrude Lawrence was a guest at a cocktail party, where she noticed a smartly-dressed young lady who seemed most attractive in appearance. Miss Lawrence turned to her husband, Richard Aldrich, and asked him: "Who's that girl? She's so pretty" . . . That's Dorothy Lamour," said Aldrich. "You've seen her in the movies so many times" . . . "No wonder I didn't recognize her," Miss Lawrence explained. "After all—this is the first time I've seen her with her hair way up and her skirts way down."

BUSINESS DEPT.: Tuesday night a new French night club, the Moulin Rouge, opened at Broadway and 52nd. The proprietors had assured a complete French motif — the decorations were French, the costumes were French, and the chefs were French. The proprietors arrived early and prepared to welcome the new customers . . . The first people to arrive were G-Men. They walked through the new French cafe, ignored the French decorations, and went straight through the kitchen where the new French dishes were being prepared. There they nabbed the new assistant chef—a Frenchman—and took him away, pursuant to the new American round-up of aliens.

When Miss Woodworth arrived at Cambridge, she was met by a mysterious barrage of oranges. Many of the students, who objected to this inhospitable greeting, tried to stop the orange throwers. In the resultant melee, the gallant Peter Saltonstall was hurt. And his was the one publicized name.

LISTEN, WORLD!

by ELSIE ROBINSON

I TRULY BELIEVE that most of our favorite proverbs and quotations are the bunk. They were created to flatter some pet conceit or alibi some favorite cussedness. As to wit, that Poetical Piffle beloved of all wives:

"Man's love is of his life a thing apart,
"'Tis woman's whole existence."

Every female, from Eve to Carmen Miranda, has heard that couplet and, I bet my pet earrings, acted on it. It has been quoted over every bridge table (with sniffles) . . . warbled in every court room . . . and is, I'm convinced, the basis of nine out of ten of our divorces.

For the poor girls really BELIEVE it! They actually think that love is a special sport, exclusively adapted to the female heart and temperament, and exempt from all the usual taxes, tests and obligations of ordinary human life.

They also believe that Love is the great mission in a woman's life and her main excuse for not doing Anything Else But. And that Man is a coarse creature who doesn't half appreciate His Little Treasure.

ALL OF WHICH is the most poisonous bunk ever fed the human cranium. Love is a holy and beautiful thing. It is the impulse behind our noblest efforts, the most civilizing force in the universe. But a woman has no more right to make "love her whole existence" than she has to center her whole energy on a platter of French pastry. And the results will be much the same.

For Life, and Love, weren't meant to serve self-indulgence. Real devotion is bigger than French pastry . . . as service is bigger than gluttony. Love means more than kisses, sighs, ecstasies. It means inspiration —growth. And it means this for the woman as well as the man. Or else.

The women who have been supremely happy . . . who have held their grip on their men's imaginations as well as on their flesh . . . have not attained this power by kissing a lock of the beloved's hair or ringing him up at the office while he was in conference. They've attained their power just as men attain their power—by taking a vital interest in their jobs.

LOVE IS A JOB . . . a life-giving job. Or it soon becomes a fadeout. That job is at its best when it operates in a home, where it naturally starts and ends.

IF YOU WANT TO LOVE . . . LIVE.

LIVE A REAL LIFE, FULL OF ABUNDANT AND ABSTRACT INTERESTS

AS AN APERITIF, ROMANCE IS A WOW; AS A FIXED IDEA, IT'S A HEADACHE.

Take the tip, little June bride. Make a world for yourself, as well as that Shangri-La of dreams. Or prepare for a long, cold buggy ride.

MY DAY

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Friday — On my return today by plane from New York I found Mlle. Eve Curie, who is staying with us for the night. My first appointment was with two ladies, Mrs. William Hurd Hill and Mrs. Huldah Randall, who had come to talk about living conditions in the southwest part of Washington. They are interested in a community house in that section, for which they are trying to raise money.

They are obliged to leave their present building, which is entirely inadequate to the demands that should be met in this section. Recreation facilities are negligible, and housing conditions are very bad. It is an area in which the colored people struggle to live decently and under almost insurmountable difficulties.

I do not know just what can be done to help them, but I feel more and more strongly every day that we should build no more memorials in stone to our great men, or even beautiful government buildings, until we have made it possible for the people who live in this city today, whether they are white or colored, to have decent housing, areas for recreation and adequate school buildings. These seem to me more important than monuments to the men who built the nation.

THERE IS ONE PIECE of information that I discovered in Maine which pleased me very much. Ten cities and towns in that State already have the food stamp plan in operation. The entire State has been designated for this program, which means that in the near future 125,000 needy people in Maine will have the opportunity to increase their food consumption through the use of the free blue surplus stamps.

This is an important step in long-range national defense. Our nutrition problems have been great, and we are only just beginning to understand that the government must assist people from the economic and educational standpoint, in order that we may remedy some of the defects which we now know exist in the feeding of our children.

MARGARET GETS HER BIGGEST ROLE

By Louella O. Parsons

Margaret Tallichet

HOLLYWOOD, May 24 — I have often wondered why Margaret Tallichet hasn't done something more important in the movies. She is so very pretty and so sweet. Well, my friend Joe Pasternak is going to see that Margaret gets her chance in "Almost An Angel," the next Deanna Durbin picture. He tells me that Henry Koster, the director, says her tests are beautiful and he feels she is a find. She has the biggest part of her career—the second femme lead.

Deanna, who started recording this past week Charles Laughton, Bob Cummings and Margaret will give this movie distinction from the acting standpoint.

MARIS WRIXON

The story should be good, too, authored as it is by Norman Krasna. Joe, by the way, has turned over his ranch, which he just bought, to Universal Sunday and over 400 Universalites will picnic there, including Deanna and her bridegroom, Vaughn Paul.

PREPARE for a surprise! Monta Bell, well known director and producer, and Olga Lee, a nonprofessional, were married six weeks ago in Las Vegas. Nary a word leaked out until today when some of Monta's associates on the Paramount lot, heard of his marriage and wondered why he had been able to keep it a secret. Well, Monta married under his real name of Louis M. Bell and gave his mother's address in Glendale. Formerly a Washington newspaper man, Monta is one of the most colorful characters in Hollywood. At one time he was M-G-M's top director and directed Garbo's first picture, "The Torrent," and many of Norma Shearer's earlier M-G-M epics. He is now associate producer and is helping prepare the script of "Aloma of the South Seas" at Paramount.

THE FICTION MARKET is leaner than it has been in years, according to Kenneth McKenna, M-G-M story editor, just back from New York. Many important writers—Robert Sherwood, Sam Spewack and others are writing non-fiction and devoting their time to the government. Kenneth believes that M-G-M will, contrary to their usual practice, buy originals and that publishers will develop junior writers during the world crisis. "Comin' At You," by Borden Chase, soon to appear as a magazine serial, is a recent M-G-M purchase. It's the story of a man who owns a small shipyard and suddenly finds himself supplying the government with big ships. Chase is coming out here to write his own adaptation and Ann Sothern is the femme lead—the only definite casting.

NO WOMEN FOR CLINT

by Isabel Johnston

WOMEN WERE a handicap in business. After seven years in real estate, Clint Morrow knew what he was talking about. It was always the wives who noticed that the kitchens were inconvenient. It was always the wives who found the price too high. Clint Morrow always told his friends he was going to stay single until he made his pile. If he had been married, he would never have dared mortgage himself to the hilt and take over the Fair Acres subdivision. No sir, no women for Clint.

The Cast of Characters in "No Women for Clint"

CLINT MORROW, who says women hurt his real estate business, and

EMILY, who almost proves he is right.

It was a woman right now who was blocking the sale of the best buy in Fair Acres. The prospect, a comfortably fixed widower, had a $5000 check right in his hand, ready to make the down payment. Mr. Henson was willing to sign on the dotted line. But, of course, it was up to the girl.

The three of them were sitting in the living room of the finest eight room house Fair Acres had to offer. It was furnished by courtesy of Darrel and Co., and a good job they did of it. Clint had even lit a fire in the Spanish corner fireplace.

"You could move right in tomorrow," Clint suggested to the girl.

She took off her blue sports hat and turned it thoughtfully in her hands. Her acorn colored hair looked smooth and lovely against the gold brocade of the chair. She looked altogether feminine and easy to persuade. But Clint noted her soft, round, determined little chin. He had no illusions about gentle women.

"We could move in as soon as we were married?" the widower urged, a question in his voice.

The girl smiled appealingly, begging them to forgive her for not being able to make up her mind.

"The kitchen is a dream." Clint guessed rightly that the girl was domestic and home loving.

"The kitchen's lovely. It's perfect. The whole hoouse is a dream," the girl agreed, and then her troubled little mouth trembled slightly. "It's just that getting married is so important. It's hard to make up your mind and get married so—so quickly."

"People get married every day," the widower pronounced prosily. "A license only costs a dollar."

TOO PRACTICAL

Clint wished Mr. Henson wasn't quite so middle aged and practical. If the prospect had only been handsome and young and romantic, the girl would have taken him with any kind of a house.

"That view of the sea—where would you find one like it?" Clint tried to take the girl's mind off the widower.

The girl rose obediently and looked out of the window, sat down on the window seat to feast her eyes on the horizon.

"I could sit here for hours," she said.

"Say the word and you can sit there forever, just as soon as the parson ties the knot," the widower pressed her.

"I know I'm terrible, but I would like to think it over," the girl rose to go, adding apologetically to Mr. Henson. "I'm not sure the house might not be chilly."

"I'll keep you warm!" laughed the widower.

The girl winced. Clint wanted to kick the widower—doing everything he could to spoil the sale.

"Maybe some other time, you might show us a house we'd like better," the girl said graciously to Clint. "After you have taken so much trouble, I'd like to buy a house through you.

"It's been a pleasure," Clint assured her, regretfully watching the widower pocket the check.

"She knows I made Hester happy," the widower complained to Clint. "And before my wife died she asked Emily to keep me from being lonely."

"Hester was my best friend," the girl admitted. "But I want to be sure I can make you as happy as Hester before you buy a house."

"Now you know we'll never find a better house than this," the widower protested as they went out the door.

No, Clint thought ruefully to himself, but she might find a handsomer husband—without money to buy a house.

"Thank you so much," the girl called over her shoulder. "We'll be seeing you again, I hope."

With as good as a salesman as Clint Morrow, a hope expressed was a hope fulfilled. For a long time, he smoked his pipe in the dream house of Fair Acres, deciding on his campaign. The widower obviously was the stumbling block. It was the widower who made the house seem chilly.

It was the widower who made the master bedroom seem too small. It was the widower who kept the nursery from being appealing.

All Clint had to do was to make her so crazy about a house that she would marry the widower without noticing it. Show her the house without the widower along. Fortunately he had learned that Miss Doran didn't work and could look at real estate on weekdays.

Two days later he telephoned her enthusiastically. There was a perfect gem of a house for her to see. Another prospect was interested, but he wanted her to see it first. Couldn't he drive around with his car and get her?

In the course of the next six weeks, he showed her a dozen houses. Several times he took her to lunch and insisted they have a cocktail to put her in the proper mood. One afternoon, they even played a whole set of pingpong while he was illustrating the joys of a rumpus room.

Emily was crazy about houses. Clint never met a girl who longed for a home of her own so much. Never before had he met a woman who took such delight in a kitchen or showed so much appreciation over a beautiful view. She was smart, too, about the value of good lumber. The gardens Clint had laid out pleased her enormously. But it was always the widower who marred Clint's best salestalk. Emily simply couldn't bring herself to marry him.

In their long afternoon together, Clint somehow began telling her of his ambitions, his struggles, all the work and love and enthusiasm he had put into making Fair Acres a success. Gifted salesman that he was, he made real estate sound like romance, adventure—as perhaps it was to him.

He described how he took vast, uncultivated acres, cleared off the brambles and underbrush, pushed roads through, planted trees on a barren hilltop, visioned home on landscaped beauty—and made his visions all come true.

She was more furious than Clint when the Bates, such dull people, finally decided against the gem of a place Clint had showed them so often. How could they take so much of his time and then not buy! It broke her heart to think he had to sell the six room cottage at the bend at a ten per cent reduction and only make a $500 profit on it.

Then one day he telephoned her and she absolutely refused to let him show her another house. She wouldn't tell him why over the telephone. So he drove out to get her anyhow. Her round little chin was determined as she resolutely refused to go with him.

"I can't let you waste your time showing me another house," she insisted.

A DREAM HOUSE

"After wasting my time, you might at least look at this one last house," he said tartly, quite forgetting his usual suave salesmanship.

Surpisingly, she went. In the car, his ruffled spirits were restored and he started talking with his usual enthusiasm.

"This house is a beauty," he began, "A dream . . ."

"I've learned too much about real estate to believe anything you say," she retorted, and she looked as if she would burst into tears with rage.

Dutifully she went through the whole house with him. He showed her the trick little cupboards in the kitchen, the lovely finish on the walls, the spacious closets, the cross ventilation in the bedrooms, the grove of white birches she could see out of the dining room windows.

But not one word of praise could he get out of her even when he explained the telephone, left by the last tenants, was already installed and working.

He was exclaiming over the carving on the fireplace mantel when she cut him short abruptly.

"All right," she said, "I'm willing. Telephone Mr. Hensen and if he likes the place, I'll marry him."

"Splendid!"

"It's the last house you'll ever show me," she said and her voice sounded a bit choked as he started toward the telephone.

Half way across the room, he paused. He stood for a moment, thinking, and then turned on her fiercely.

"No, I'm not selling! Not for any price!" He strode over toward her with violent resolution. "I'm keeping this house for myself and you're going to live in it."

THE END.

They even played a whole set of ping-pong while he was illustrating the joys of a rumpus room.

N.A.D.A. SEES AMERICA CRIPPLED WITHOUT AUTOS AS MEANS OF TRAVEL

"The necessity of the automobile as a means of transportation far outweighs any other factor in influencing the purchase of automobiles."

"Modern America travels on wheels, and the privately owned motor vehicle is used by millions of Americans to carry on every day activities." This was the explanation in the third study prepared by the National Automobile Dealers Association to acquaint the public with the place of the motor car in modern transportation and the need to maintain its continued production and efficiency.

"If American industry had to depend upon public transportation systems such as busses, street cars, etc., to transport workers to and from workshops today, practically every shop would be unable to function because of the inability of men to get to their jobs.

"Workers today live many miles from their jobs, and only the low cost automobile has made it possible for them to get away from the congested city areas out into the sunshine, and to travel back and forth to work economically and quickly.

"A visit to any industrial scene today reveals in startling fashion the extent to which industry depends upon automotive transportation for its functioning.

"Under the vast requirements of the defense program, it is of the utmost importance that nothing be done which will tend to restrict the rapid and efficient flow of workers, twenty-four hours a day, and which is possible only through the present availability of private automobile ownership.

"Through the National Automobile Dealers Ass'n and state and local dealer associations, steps are now being taken to train mechanics so that the increased strain placed upon private transportation facilities may be taken care of quickly and economically through adequate service and repair departments."

Noyes Buick Co. Trains 75 Red Cross Volunteers

Seventy members of the Volunteer Motor Corps of the Boston Metropolitan Chapter, American Red Cross, are completing a three weeks course in motor mechanics at the Noyes Buick Co.

The firm's auditorium has been donated for lectures and its service station for mechanical lessons.

This is the second group in a series of Red Cross motor courses instituted by Thomas P. Fullam, former director of safety at the Boston Automobile Club, from data supplied by the American Automobile Ass'n.

Ford dealers have lent cars and trucks which were used for training at Malibu Beach, Dorchester, and for a recent 84-mile convoy trip through the middle western section of the state.

The course includes every phase of motor mechanics together with psycho-physical tests for driver adaptability in emergency. Elaborate eye-testing devices have been lent by the American Optical Co.

The members of the corps, under the direction of Capt. Florence Densmore, pay for their uniforms, gas, oil and tires for their work, which includes the transportation of invalids to and from hospitals, all transportation maneuvers in the event of disaster, and the administering of first aid wherever necessary.

Last year the Metropolitan Chapter's Motor Corps covered 132,000 miles of active duty.

CHRYSLER'S FLUID DRIVE SURVIVES GRUELLING TEST

With a record of 147,000 miles of continuous day and night driving through the sands of Texas entirely free from trouble, Chrysler's Fluid Drive has completed one of the most gruelling tests ever imposed on automobile mechanism.

Two Chrysler cars with Fluid Drive have been operated for the last year by Sears, Roebuck and Company, in its test fleet at San Antonio, Texas. The purpose of this test fleet is to determine the quality of tires, engine oil, and spark plugs that are merchandised by this great company. Naturally, driving conditions are made as difficult as possible in order that Sears may have complete information on the items being tested.

Cars are driven 24 hours a day every day in the year and drivers are instructed to punish them in order that the high quality of the goods may be determined beyond any chance of error. The standard driving speed is 60 miles an hour, with three drivers operating on eight-hour shifts to keep the cars constantly on the tests. Expert mechanics service the vehicles at regular intervals.

L. A. Werne, superintendent in charge of the test fleet, reports that no service was necessary on Fluid Drive during 147,000 miles of operation, in spite of the continuous and varied punishment given the cars. Mr. Werne also says that after all this driving, the original pistons fit within limits, a tribute to the fine surface finish that Chrysler is able to achieve through its superfinishing process. Connecting rod bearings are changed at 30,000 miles and pieton rings are replaced at 35,000 miles as a part of the regular procedure of the tests.

PONTIAC CHIEFS AT POW-WOW

PONTIAC dealers celebrating the New England sales-record victory at the Statler were joined by many factory officials, including, left to right, W. J. Mougey, advertising manager; V. L. Murray, assistant general sales manager, and M. C. Thompson, Atlantic regional manager. "Despite 1942 model production curtailment Pontiac plans to continue its advertising and our appropriation will virtually parallel the 1941 season," said Mougey.

Bathrick Sees Banner Year for Auto Business

D. U. Bathrick, general sales manager of Pontiac, headed a group of factory officials who gathered here to meet the New England dealer group.

Charles N. Kane, zone manager, was the toastmaster. New England Pontiac sales are running 67 per cent ahead of last year in sales and Mr. Kane was complimented for achieving fourth place for Pontiac. Bathrick said:

"Never have I seen the automobile business as good as it is today. Everyone wants to buy a new car. People are of the opinion prices will be higher next season and that taxes will add to the cost of 1942 models."

It's estimated by Bathrick that 25 per cent of the 1941 sales are borrowed from the 1942 season, but even with this situation, he predicted there would be buyers for all the cars that can be built in 1942.

Mr. Bathrick warned the dealers to prepare for the transition from the high production to the curtailed basis for the 1942 season. He discussed the 1942 model plans and advised the dealers that Pontiac would change its model this fall. To offset the tremendous demand on plant facilities the factory will continue production for a month longer than in 1940.

In commenting on the 1942 model Bathrick said:

"Motorists not sure about next year's automobiles should wait till they see them. Our body and sheet making dies were made last winter and were not needed for defense work."

Pontiac is building anti-aircraft cannons which fire around 400 shots a minute and are effective at around 10,000 feet in the air. This war work production is not interferring with car production because it is being conducted in the old plant and every one of the 250 machines were special built for the cannon-building.

V. L. Murray, assistant general salesmanager; M. C. Thompson, Atlantic regional manager, and W. J. Mougey, advertising manager, were in attendance.

KANE IS CONGRATULATED

WEATHER

Official U. S. Weather Bureau Forecast

LOCAL—Fair tonight and Sunday; slightly cooler tonight with the lowest temperature about 50 degrees; slowly rising temperature Sunday; moderate northwest winds tonight and Sunday.

MAINE—Fair in west and clearing in east portion, continued cool tonight; Sunday fair and slightly warmer.

VERMONT AND NEW HAMPSHIRE—Fair and continued cool tonight; Sunday, fair and slightly warmer.

GENERAL CONDITIONS

The passage of the low pressure trough brought an end to the two-day period of excessive heat, and the cold front was just off the coast early today. A northwesterly flow of cool, dry air, which had been causing fair weather in the glacial states for the past two days and in the Great Lakes region yesterday has become established in the northeast today. Light rain, which was still falling over eastern Maine, will soon cease and be followed by clearing skies later today. Mostly clear skies will continue tonight and Sunday, as the high pressure system accompanying the cooler weather dominates conditions in this vicinity during the next 36 hours.

American Woman Says Nazis Fired On Children in Boat

ON THE FRENCH-SPANISH FRONTIER, May 22—(Delayed)—An American woman survivor from the Egyptian motorship Zamzam, sunk by a Nazi raider in the south Atlantic, April 17, said today she and her six children were machine-gunned after they had taken to a lifeboat.

Mrs. Elmer Danielson of Lindsborg, Kansas, said she and her children boarded the lifeboat safely after the raider attacked the Zamzam, but that the lifeboat apparently was mistaken for an armed launch in the darkness.

With the five children who had life preservers tied to her and with the sixth child who had no life preserver, under her arm, she swam until lifeboats from the raider picked her up, she said.

Mrs. Danielson, who is expecting another child, said she was en route to join her missionary husband in Tanganyika Territory, Africa.

Survivors said the raider was flying a Norwegian flag.

Churchill Warns of Invasion

LONDON, May 24 (AP)—If Nazi troops attempt to take the British isles, "it may easily be some weeks before the invader has been totally destroyed," Prime Minister Winston Churchill warned Britons today in a message accompanying an official "Beating the Invader" leaflet.

The postoffice will distribute 14,000,000 copies of the leaflet next Tuesday to instruct the public what to do in case an invasion is attempted.

Churchill's message, painting a graphic picture of what may be expected, said:

"If invasion comes, everyone—young, old, men and women—will be eager to play their part worthily. By far the greater part of the country will not be immediately involved.

"Even along our coasts the greater part will remain unaffected. But where the enemy lands, or tries to land, there will be most violent fighting.

"Not only will there be battles when the enemy tries to come ashore, but afterward there will fall upon his lodgements very heavy British counter-attacks and all the time his lodgements will be under heaviest attack by British bombers.

"The fewer civilians or non-combatants in these areas the better — apart from essential workers who must remain. So if you are advised by authority to leave the place where you like, it is your duty to go elsewhere whence you are told to leave.

"When the attack begins it will be too late to go; and unless you receive definite instructions to move, your duty then will be to stay where you are.

"You will have to get into the safest place you can find and stay there until the battle is over. For all of you then, the order and the duty will be—stand firm.

DON'T BLOCK ROADS

"This also appeals to people inland if a considerable number of parachutists or air-borne troops are landed in their neighborhood. Above all, they must not cumber the roads.

"Home guards, supported by strong mobile columns, wherever the enemies' numbers require it, will immediately come to grips with the invaders and, there is little doubt, will soon destroy them.

"Throughout the rest of the country where there is no fighting going on and no cannon fire or rifle fire can be heard, everyone will govern his conduct by the second great order and duty, namely—carry on.

"It may easily be some weeks before the invader has been totally destroyed; that is to say, killed or captured to the last man who landed on our shores.

"Meanwhile, all work must be continued to the utmost and no time lost.

"The following notes have been prepared to tell everyone in rather more detail what to do, and they should be carefully studied.

"Each man and woman should think out a clear plan of personal action in accordance with the general scheme."

The leaflet, which has been under consideration for more than a month, gives answers to 14 questions on invasion most frequently asked by the public, and urges:

"Give all help you can to our troops. Do not tell the enemy anything. Do not help him in any way."

RADIO DENIED HOFFMAN RIGHT TO TELL STORY

THERE IS NO freedom of the radio as was once more proved when Ancil Hoffman, manager of Buddy Baer, was choked off and not permitted to give his story of the weird ending of the world's heavyweight championship bout between Joe Louis and Buddy Baer at Griffith Stadium, Washington.

After Louis was declared a questionable winner by Referee Arthur Donovan in a dramatic ending, which saw Louis belting Baer to the canvas after the gong sounded for the end of the sixth round, Ancil Hoffman was asked to make a statement over the radio. The particular station controlling the broadcast is operated by the National Broadcasting Co.

Bill Stern, NBC broadcaster, was in charge. Stern and Sam Taub had given the story of the bout as they had seen it.

Hoffman took over the "mike" and with Stern at his elbow said:

"This is the rawest thing——"

That is as far as he got. Bill Stern pulled the "mike" away from Hoffman and refused to permit Baer's manager to tell his story.

Hoffman soon found out there was not any freedom of the radio. In vio wof the fact Hoffman wished to make a statement that Stern of the NBC did not approve of he was denied the use of the radio.

Fortunately for Hoffman, Baer and for the American public, there were 300 working newspapermen at the ringside. They gave an attentive audience to Hoffman's story of what hefrankly termed a rank ring robbery.

Hoffman was permitted to tell the story of how Louis landed his "kill" punch after the bell had sounded for the end of the sixth round, and how under the rules of boxing he should have been disqualified for committing a foul.

The 300 working newspapermen then sent Hoffman's statement in full without any censorship to their newspapers, and it was read by millions of Americans. If the public had been obliged to rely solely upon the radio, it never would have got Hoffman's story.

The latest news dispatches from Washington state that Timekeeper Charles Reynolds supported Hoffman in his claim that the final Louis punch was delivered after the bell. According to Reynolds, and he should know, as he had the official watch in front of him, the punch landed three seconds after the bell sounded for the end of the sixth round.

Referee's decision will be final

DESPITE THE claims of Hoffman and of the opinions of sports writers and fans at the ringside, the decision of Referee Arthur Donovan in favor of Louis will stand. The referee has the final say on such matters and right or wrong his decision is the one that is entered into the record books.

When Hoffman asked for a hearing before the District of Columbia Boxing Commission, he knew he would not get a reversal of Donovan's decision, but he wished to gain as much national publicity for Baer's claims as possible. Hoffman knows that the public will insist that Louis meet Baer in a return bout.

Hoffman did the smart thing in not sending Baer out of his corner for the seventh round. If he had done so, Buddy would probably have been knocked cold, and the possibility for the present stormy controversy would have been eliminated.

Bill Stern, the radio broadcaster, fortunately does not control the newspapers of the United States. Neither does the NBC and as a result Hoffman will be permitted to give his version of what happened in Washington.

Stern even went so far as to say Louis did no thear the bell. How is Stern able to decide what Louis did or didn't hear?

Today Louis says he did hear the bell, and that he landed the final blow before it sounded. That was the proper answer for Louis to make for it shows him as believing that he was within his rights when he knocked Baer helpless.

Maloney-Solomon bout ending in Boston

THE ENDING OF the Louis-Baer bout reminded Boston boxing fans of the famous Jim Maloney-King Solomon bout at Braves Field. During a wild mixup after the bell for the end of a round, Solomon knocked Maloney cold. Neither of the boxers or Referee Johnny Brassill heard the bell.

Harry Kelley, Maloney's chief second, heard the bell, and before any decision could be rendered he jumped into the ring and rushed Referee Brassill over to Timekeeper Gene Durgin, who stated that the knockout punch landed after the bell for the end of the round sounded.

Referee Brassill didn't hesitate a second when told of the infraction of the rule by Solomon, and he awarded Maloney the decision on a foul.

Referee Donovan, under a strict interpretation of the rules of boxing, should have done so in Washington last night if he believed the punch that wrecked Baer was delivered after the gong.

The bout proved two things. First, Louis has slipped a great deal, and, second, that sports fans must follow the newspaper accounts of boxing bouts and other athletic events if they are to get the true story of what happened. There is no such thing as a free radio. Fortunately, there still is a free press.

Baer Title Claim Plea Deferred Until Monday

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—The District of Columbia boxing commission today postponed until Monday a hearing on Buddy Baer's claim that he was fouled by Joe Louis in last night's heavyweight fight and therefore was entitled to the championship.

FLOORED—Through the ropes in the first round of his title fight with Buddy Baer at Griffith Stadium, Washington, goes Champ Joe Louis after the challenger, a 10-1 underdog, landed a crushing left hook. Louis took count of four.

Baer claimed he was struck after the bell sounded ending the sixth round. He was disqualified by Refreee Arthur Donovan after his handlers refused to perfit him to come out for the seventh round.

Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager, claimed a foul and waas granted a hearing before the three-man commission today.

However, Commissioner Thomas P. Morgan notified him this morning that it would be impossible to get the entire board together and that a hearing would be held at 11 a. m. Monday.

At the same time Promoter Mike Jacobs issued a statement saying he would put Baer and Louis back in a return match next month "if Billy Conn does not look good in his fight with Buddy Knox in Pittsburgh Monday night."

Conn is scheduled to fight Louis in New York on June 18.

"The last blow of the fight," Hoffman said upon being granted the hearing by the District Commission, "was struck at least three seconds after the bell sounded ending the sixth round, and thus was illegal. The timekeeper, Major Ernest H. Brown, told me that.

"Arthur Donovan was the referee and should have realized that. You know, we had to accept Donovan (who was brought from New York) as the referee. Otherwise, we wouldn't have been given the shot at Joe."

BAER PUT UP GOOD FIGHT

An unusual angle of the appeal to the District Commission was that whatever action this body might take probably will be approved in 26 other states, since the local group is a member of the National Boxing Ass'n, which controls the sport in that large an area.

Baer put up a surprisingly good fight before he failed to come out for the seventh round.

Up to the time he had enough, the towering Buddy made a stout showing. He knocked Louis smack through the ropes in the opening round, bringing awed, hesitant cheer from the dark stands and he generally comported himself with honor until the moment when his manager, Ancil Hoffman took advantage of a thin technicality to end the fight in confusion.

Hoffman claimed that Louis clouted Buddy after the bell rang ending the sixth round. He was correct in this by the matter of a half second, perhaps, but it wasn't important. Baer was badly beaten and ready to flop, anyway.

Referee Arthur Donovan didn't hesitate or argue. He gave it to Louis and in the dressing room later he was inclined to be pugnacious when questioned about his decision.

"I'm not sure Louis hit him after the bell," he snapped. "It was close, but, anyway, Baer probably wouldn't have gone long in the next round. He was in bad shape and I would have been watching to stop it."

The sixth round—the one that caused all the argument—saw Baer knocked to the canvas twice. First the dusky champion dropped him for a count of six with a terrific right to the jaw. Baer staggered up to run into another—wham—and went down again, sprawled all over the place.

Donovan this time just had reached the count of nine when Buddy heaved himself up off the

FIGHT WRITERS DISAGREE ON 'LATE PUNCH' LOUIS WIN

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—Most of the fight writers at the Joe Louis-Buddy Baer bout agreed that the punch ending the tussle landed just after the bell ending the sixth round, but a good portion of them believed Baer had been counted out in the knockdown before this blow.

In that case, the latter group contended, there was no reason for the argument over the final punch, which floored Baer for the third time and led to his disqualification by Referee Arthur Donovan, when his handlers refused to permit him to come out for the seventh round. His manager, Ancil Hoffman, claimed this punch was struck after the bell ending the sixth and constituted a foul on the part of Louis.

ALL OVER BEFORE PUNCH

The majority of the "experts" at ringside held that Louis started the final punch before the bell rang, but that it landed a split second afterward. Some, however, said it started and fell a full two or three seconds after the bell.

This punch knocked Baer down for the third time. Those who wouldn't get excited about the before-or-after the bell argument maintained that Buddy's hands and knees still were touching the floor when the knockdown timekeeper, Charles Reynolds, said "ten" in counting over Buddy's second knockdown.

Among those who held this opinion were H. G. Salsinger, Detroit News; Willie Ratner, Newark Evening News; Sid Feder, Associated Press; Caswell Adams, New York Herald Tribune; Al Buck, New York Post, and Joe Nichols, New York Times.

Of these, all thought the last blow was started before the bell ending the round and landed a split second afterward, except Ratner, who stated the argument just shouldn't have come up at all, and Buck, who believed the blow definitely was struck after the gong had sounded.

AN UNINTENTIONAL FOUL

Among others who believed the blow started before the bell but landed afterward were Dan Parker and Murray Lewin, New York Daily Mirror, and Jack Mahon, International News Service.

Those who contended the last blow was an out and out foul started and landed after the bell sounded, were Hype Igoe, New York Journal American; Gayle Talbot, Associated Press; Henry Ferguson and Jack Cuddy, United Press; Jesse Linthicum, Baltimore Sun; Cy Peterman and John Webster, Philadelphia Inquirer, and Dick McCann, New York Daily News, who argued it was "an unintentional foul" after the bell.

Max Says Brother Bud "Got Works"

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 24 (AP)—Max Baer, former heavyweight champion, listened to a radio account of his brother Buddy's fight with Joe Louis and concluded Buddy "got the works."

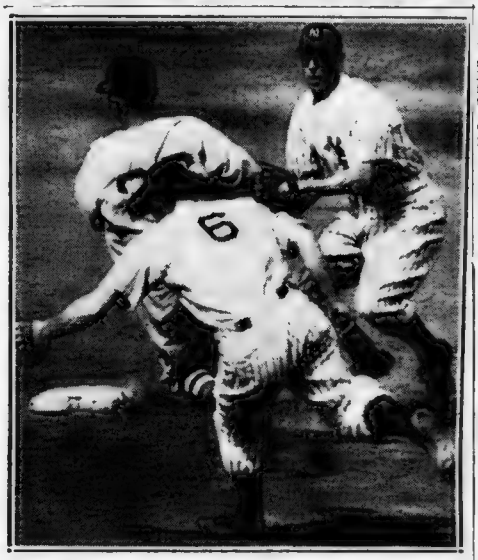
"Because a man's a champ doesn't give him the privilege to hit a man after the bell rings," said Max, referring to the disputed final blow of the bout.

"This is the first time in my life I ever heard of a champion getting his eye cut and having it affect his hearing," continued Max, who himself has taken a licking from Louis.

Max gathered from the radio account that Buddy got up at the count of nine, that the bell rang and that Louis "then came in and nailed him."

"I can't understand why a fighter has to go into the ring, fight Louis, the two judges, the referee and the radio announcer," Max said.

RED SOX SCORE TWO IN THIRD



NO SLIDE? Skeeter Newsome (26) out at second on Peacock's grounder to Gordon (6) in second inning. Gordon flipped ball to Crosetti, who sidestepped oncoming Newsome to complete double play at first. Newsome might have taken Crosetti out of play with determined slide, it seems. Those little things count, especially in a game which ends 9-all.

YANKEE STADIUM, NEW YORK, May 24—In an attempt to win their first game at the Yankee Stadium, Manager Cronin nominated his best pitcher, Lefty Earl Johnson, to face the Yankees in the second game of the series today.

The veteran southpaw, Vernon Gomez, of the Yanks, was his opponent.

Johnson has four victories and one defeat to his credit and a victory over the Yanks in Boston, while Gomez' record is three wins and three losses. Among these is one defeat at the hands of the Red Sox.

About 15,000 were on hand when Umpire Ormsby called "Play ball."

FIRST INNING

RED SOX—D. DiMaggia walked. Finey popped to Gordon. D. DiMaggio was out stealing. Rosar to Crositti. Williams walked. Crosetti fumbled Foxx' roller, Williams reaching second. Cronin flied to Henrich. NO RUNS.

YANKEES — Sturm struck out. Rolfe flied deep to P. Fox. Henrich popped to Foxx. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING

RED SOX—P. Fox popped to Crosetti. L. Newsome walked. Pytlak flied to Keller. Johnson was called on strikes. NO RUNS.

YANKEES—J. DiMaggio flied to Williams. Foxx threw out Gordon. Keller went out swinging. NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING

RED SOX—D. DiMaggio fouled to Sturm. Finney flied to Henrich Williams beat out a hit to Crosetti. Foxx tripled, scoring Williams. Cronin singled, scoring Foxx. P. Fox fouled to Sturm. TWO RUNS.

YANKEES—Rosar beat out a hit to Foxx. Crosetti grounded out Finney, L. Newsome threw out Gomez. Sturm grounded to L. Newsome. NO RUNS.

FOURTH INNING

RED SOX—L. Newsome flied to J. DiMaggio. Pytlak flied to Keller. Johnson singled. D. DiMaggio tripled, scoring Johnson. Finney popped to Crosetti. ONE RUN.

YANKEES—Cronin threw out Rolfe. Henrich singled, and when P. Fox let the ball go past him, Henrich went to second. J. DiMaggio hit to Foxx who threw the ball into the right field stands, Henrich scoring and J. DiMaggio reaching second. Foxx threw out Gordon, J. DiMaggio took third on the play. Keller dragged a bunt and beat it out for a hit, J. DiMaggio scoring. Rosar singled, sending Keller to third. Crosetti forced Rosar, Cronin, unassisted. TWO RUNS.

FIFTH INNING

RED SOX — Williams singled. Foxx walked. Cronin fouled to Rosar. P. Fox singled, scoring Williams, Foxx stopping at second. L. Newsome forced P. Fox, Crosetti to Gordon. Pytlak forced L. Newsome, Crosetti to Gordon. ONE RUN.

YANKEES—Gomez struck out. Sturm grounded to Finney and so did Rolfe. NO RUNS.

SIXTH INNING

RED SOX—Gordon threw out Johnson. D. DiMaggio lifted to Henrich. Finney popped to Rolfe NO RUNS.

YANKEES—Henrich was out Finney to Johnson who covered first. J. DiMaggio reached third when D. DiMaggio dropped his long fly. Cronin threw out Gordon. J. DiMaggio scoring on the play. Keller flied to P. Fox. ONE RUN.

Leading Drivers At Topsfield

A large field of topnotch drivers have signified their intention of competing in the auto races to be held at the Topsfield Fair Grounds' half-mile speedway on May 30.

Among the first of the entries received is that of Louis Guilliano, Rhode Island State champion; Bud Milligan of New York, Dusty Slater of Cambridge, Newton Fowler of Arlington, Charlie Morse of Ayer, Ernie Bradden of Andover, Bob Murdock of Dorchester and Dick Masey of Lynn.

TUMBLER—Ted Williams (see ball in bare hand?) about to take header after making circus catch of Tommy Henrich's liner in fourth inning. Note expression of amazement on fan's face. Game ended 9-all.

40,000 See Indians Scalp Browns

By The Associated Press

The world champion Cincinnati Reds have given a tremendous advantage to their pennant rivals in the National League, but with four-fifths of the season still ahead, it is too early to count them out.

They apparently are on the upgrade after striking bottom last week with a six-game losing streak.

Since then, they have won five out of six contests and yesterday concuered the Chicago Cubs, 8-4, with a proper show of authority. Johnny Vander Meer and Elmer Riddle combined to pitch four-hit ball.

In the third inning, however, Vandy walked three men and hit another and these gifts, linked with an infield out and an error, permitted Chicago to score three times.

8½ GAMES BEHIND

The Reds popped Claude Passeau for two runs in the first and added four more in the third. They made 10 hits, four of them singles by Ernie Lombardi.

The victory left the Reds a half-game out of the first division and 8½ behind the pace-setting St. Louis Cardinals.

The Cards clipped the Pittsburgh Pirates, 2-1, in the first night tilt of the year in St. Louis to take a two-game margin over the idle Brooklyn Dodgers

Mort Cooper pitched five-hit ball, fanned nine and singled in one of the Redbirds' runs. It was the fifth triumph against one defeat for the young righthander. Max Butcher hurled tight ball for Pittsburgh, but received litt'e help from his mates.

The Cleveland Indians, leaders in the American League, also opened their night-game schedule by treating 40,000 fans to a 4-2 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

The encounter was decided in the first inning when Ken Keltner tripled with the bases loaded and Ray Mack singled him home. Al Milnar and Dennis Galehouse each gave five hits and each had spells of wildness. Galehouse, who had won three straight without a setback, walked three men in the first inning ahead of Keltner's blow. In the third frame Milnar loaded the bases on a single and two walks A wild pitch let in one run and an error the other. It was Milnar's sixth win.

LYONS WINS OPENER

The second-place Chicago White Sox split a double-header with the Tigers at Detroit. Old Ted Lyons pitched Chicago to a 7-1 victory in the opener and Paul (Dizzy) Trout retaliated with a 9-0 shutout on seven-hit hurling.

Lyons, 40 years old, kept 11 hits so well-spaced that Detroit didn't score until the ninth. On the other hand the Sox loaded the bases on Tommy Bridges in the first and tallied five times on an error and two doubles. Trout was backed by a 14-hit offensive that included two home runs by Bruce Campbell.

Today a Year Ago—Henry Armstrong defended welterweight title for 17th time with technical knockout over Ralph Zannelli in fifth round.

Three Years Ago — $100,000 match race between Seabiscuit and War Admiral at Belmont Park called off because of Seabiscuit's sore legs.

Five Years Ago—Tony Lazzeri established American League record by batting in 11 runs, hitting two homers with bases loaded as Yankees slaughtered Athletics, 25-2.

BRAVES-GIANTS GAME OFF; SINGLE GAME TOMORROW

By FRANK FENWAY

Uncomfortably cribbed in seventh place due to a series of shellackings in the Golden West, the Braves today took shelter from the rain in their clubhouse and laid plans to climb toward a more dignified rung in the league standings.

They were to have opened against the Giants at Braves Field this afternoon but the downpour forced cancellation of the test. So the surge perforce must be delayed until tomorrow when the same two clubs meet in a single game, starting at 3 p. m.

Tomorrow's pitchers will be Lefty Joe Sullivan for the Braves and Prince Hal Schumacher for the invaders and Manager Casey Stengel is hoping that Sully shows better than some of his other hurlers did in the West.

Gents like Tobin, Errickson, Posedel and Salvo, were figured to be five-game winners, or thereabouts, at this stretch of the campaign, but the sad fact is, friends, they have won but five among them

Errickson, in particular, has been a tremendous disappointment. The big, young right-hander figured a cinch to be a winning pitcher this season. Thus far, he has failed to either chalk up a win or finish a contest.

Stengel hopes the return to the Friendly Allston pasture will do for his hurlers what plenty of opportunity failed to in the west.

Returning with the Braves, incidentally, is the hottest bit of baseball bric-a-brac in the National League, and if the pitchers have been a let-down this wee gentleman has most certainly been an antidote.

He is Lloyd "Little Poison" Waner, who came to the home club in a trade with Pittsburgh and promptly celebrated the shift by breaking into one wowser of a hitting streak.

Going into this afternoon's struggle, the younger of the two great ball-playing Waners boasts the amazing average of .565, a jump of more than 300 points since his change of spangles.

Only he and his aged outfield companion Johnny Cooney are hitting over .300 for Stengel's club, and it is small wonder Casey is discouraged with the progress of his youth movement

He plans to string along with his present lineup for a few days to see if a shift to the home park will shake the club from its slump, but if the Braves don't start winning soon you can bet the skimmer there'll be some changes made.

Winner entered to be claimed for $1250. Scratched—Bottle Nox.
Overweight: Stingaling, 1 pound; Last Chance 5, Brave Action 2½.
Owners: 1, G. I. McGourty; 2, Grant Thorn; 3, P. Andolino; 4, L. Duger; 5, R. Ruff; 6, W. Vines; 7, Louis La Riggio; 8, High Hope Farm.
Stingaling, a sharp runner, was not permitted to settle into her stride without being hurried during the first half mile; moved up gradually on the outside when called upon and, responding readily, assumed command in the last furlong. Bright Camp, who was [illegible] the first turn opened up a good lead and, rated along in front [illegible], was [illegible] the last furlong and was under a hard drive to the wire. Par A'our, always ready after leaving the starting barrier, while unable to reach the leaders, Cavu tired after showing to the [illegible]. Last Chance, [illegible], Mr. Chicle dropped back going to the first turn and trailed the pack throughout.

Diz a Professor

CHICAGO, May 24 (AP)—It's "Professor" Dizzy Dean now.

The onetime major league pitching star, who signed as a Chicago Cubs coach recently, will direct a Cub summer baseball school for boys of 17 to 20.

Assisted by Jack Sheehan, former major league infielder, Dean will give instructions at several Chicago playgrounds and select the most apt students for a final trial at Wrigley Field June 30.

BAER'S TITLE CLAIM PLEA ON MONDAY

floor. He was helpless, his arms hanging limply, and Louis charged in for the kill. Louis had the final punch already started when the bell sounded dimly through the uproar.

The blow caught Baer flush on the jaw and down he went again.

Baer's seconds swarmed out and carried him to his corner. At the end of 60 seconds, the long, tall Californian had revived and could have toddled forth to catch more punishment, but his manager, Hoffman, was tearing around the ring instead and arguing with the referee. Donovan shook off Hoffman impatiently and pointed to Louis as the winner.

KNOCKED THROUGH ROPES

Baer, as heretofore stated, put up a good fight, and it scarcely was his fault that the bout had to end in such crazy fashion. Buddy taking advantage of his enormous height and reach, lashed out every time they came together. He put a bruise on Louis' chin in the very first round and lanced a little cut under the champion's left eye in the fifth. Louis had to put everything he had behind his punches to cut Buddy down in the sixth.

The first round, in fact, belonged to the angular Baer by a wide margin, and the fourth and fifth could have been given to him, too. The opening chapter was almost ended when he fetched up a thundering left that caught Louis flush and catapulted him through the ropes, the champion coming down head-first after a great flashing of boxing trunks in the ringsiders' faces.

The Negro bobbed right up at the count of four, his face filled with wonderment. He climbed back through the ropes and started to work on Buddy, and thereafter there never was much doubt of the eventual result.

Louis was to leave for New York today to establish training camp for his next title defense against Billy Conn on June 18. Conn's manager, Johnny Ray, watched last night's fray and convinced himself that Louis had lost his punch completely.

More than 24,000 watched the bout.

Two Judges, Timekeeper Agree Punch After Bell

WASHINGTON, May 24 (INS)—So you would like to know whether Joe Louis actually knocked out Buddy Baer in the sixth round last night or whether the Bomber fouled his way to victory with a sneak punch after the bell ended the round? So would lots of folks.

Here's what the officials had to say. Figure it out for yourself.

REFEREE ARTHUR DONOVAN: "Baer got off the floor after the second knockout just as I called ten. Remember he is allowed ten seconds to get up. He was hit the last time just as the bell sounded ending the round. I had nothing else to do but to disqualify Baer when Ancil Hoffman refused to leave the ring once the bell for the seventh round rang."

JUDGE JIMMY SULLIVAN: "Baer definitely was hit after the bell and should have been given time to recover from the foul blow. Donovan should have taken the initiative. It doesn't follow Louis should be disqualified. At worst he should have had the round taken from him."

JUDGE JOSEPH E. TRIGG, a colored physician: "Baer was hit after the bell which was slightly muffled due to being placed under the ring. Joe wouldn't do it on purpose but the chances are the fighters didn't hear the bell. Baer should have been given time to recover."

TIMEKEEPER PAT O'CONNOR: "I told Donovan that Louis had hit Baer after the bell. I'd say about three seconds after it."

KNOCKDOWN TIMEKEEPER CHARLES REYNOLDS: "I counted Baer out following the second knockdown in the sixth. I reached 10 but of course my count is not official. It is the referee's pick-up of the count that counts for I can't watch what's happening in the ring."

Blues Hopeful

KANSAS CITY—If good luck charms have anything to do with it, the Kansas City Blues are pennant-bound again.

Mrs. Henry Honick sent the league-leaders 250 four-leaf clovers, and wrote:

"With that much luck behind you, you cannot lose."

She said it took her three days to find the clovers in her back yard.

VIC GHEZZI TAKES LEAD IN GOODALL

By BILL GRIMES

FLUSHING, N. Y., May 24—Vic Ghezzi, Deal, N. J., moved into the pacemaking position after the fourth round of the Goodall this morning at Fresh Meadow by taking a total of seven holes from Lawson Little and Jimmy Demaret.

Ghezzi has played four profitable rounds and, going into fifth loop this afternoon, he amassed 19 points, was 2 up on Horton Smith, the runner-up, and the latter four points up on Paul Runyan.

Harold "Jug" McSpaden was unable to match the five birdies tossed at him by Corp. E. "Porky" Oliver and yielded three holes to the pride of Ft. Dix, but he took two points from Jimmy Thomson for a net loss of one, which dropped back to the 11th slot, with a minus 3.

Off the first tee, McSpaden, Oliver and Thomson were all in the rough to the right. "Jug's" iron to the green, played through the tree, was short but both of his opponents got home. McSpaden made a poor chip and dropped two points.

Oliver began to work on McSpaden and Thomson. He "birdied" the 2d and 3d holes to be three up on Jug and two up on Jimmy standing on the 4th tee. At the short 4th, McSpaden and Thomson were on, but the strong wind carried Oliver's shot into a trap, and he put back a couple of points by taking a four.

They were all on the green at the long 5th in three, but Thomson needed three putts to hole out, leveling his match with McSpaden and dropping back to two down to Oliver.

Oliver's second at the 6th ran about 5 feet by the pin. He holed the putt for a "birdie," his third in 6 holes, and McSpaden and Thomson were in the barrel for three points each.

Playing against a gale, McSpaden, Thomson and Oliver all played woods for their seconds at the 412-yard 7th. Still no one got home and they halved the hole with 5's.

At the 8th, Oliver got behind a tree. After taking a couple of clashes at his ball picked up and McSpaden and Thomson halved the hole with fours.

McSpaden and Thomson tried to reach the green at the short 9th with 5 irons and landed in traps. Oliver hit a three iron and the wind carried his ball into the trap which Thomson had caught.

All three made fine outs, Thomson to within five feet of the hole. After Oliver had missed a 15 footer, McSpaden canned a tricky side hill 10-footer for his three, halving the hole with Thomson, and picking up a point on Oliver, to be one down to Uncle Sam's representative and all square with Thomson.

McSpaden and Thomson were in enough trouble at the 10th to lose the hole to Oliver, and Jimmy's bogey at the 11th cost him two points.

Oliver lost control of his putter at the 12th green and went for a couple of points. When he took three to get on at the short 14th, McSpaden was all even with the soldier boy. Not for long though, because Porky ran down a 50-footer for a bird at the 15th, and a 12-footer for another at the 17th.

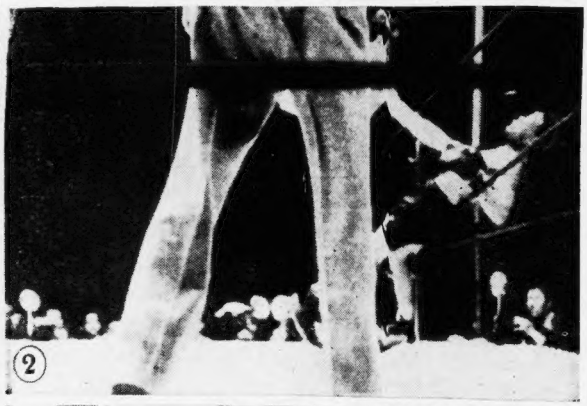
After Thomson's second at the 18th had landed in practically an unplayable lie, McSpaden presented Oliver with another point by missing a very short putt, following a great trap shot.

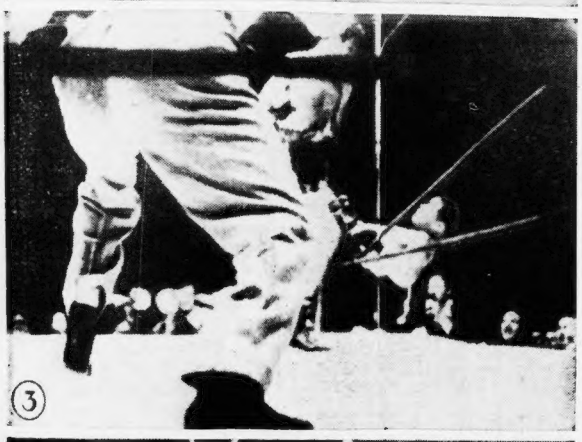
Hughes Leads Minor Loop

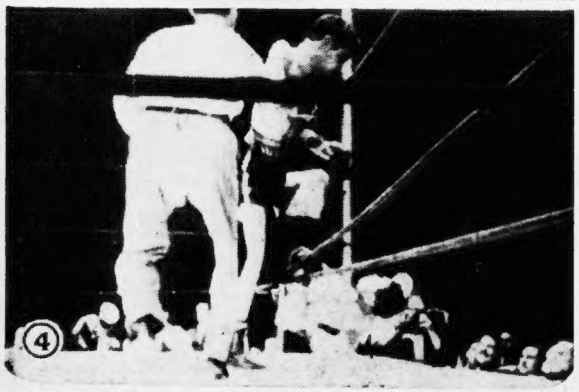
NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—The parade of hitters into temporary batting leadership in the International League is continuing with no sign of an immediate stop.

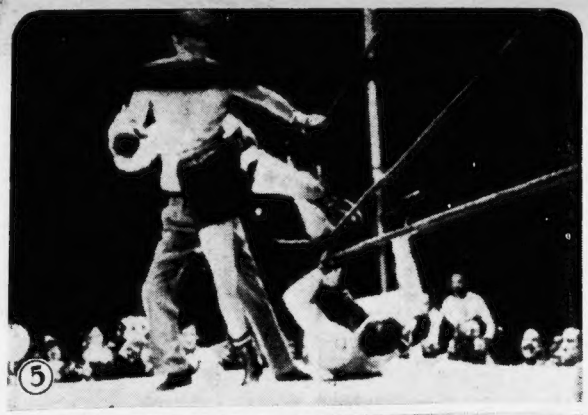
First place this week went to Roy Hughes of Montreal, whose .344 mark at the close of Wednesday's competition was three points better than the average of Bob Patrick of Buffalo, who had been out in front the week before with .349.

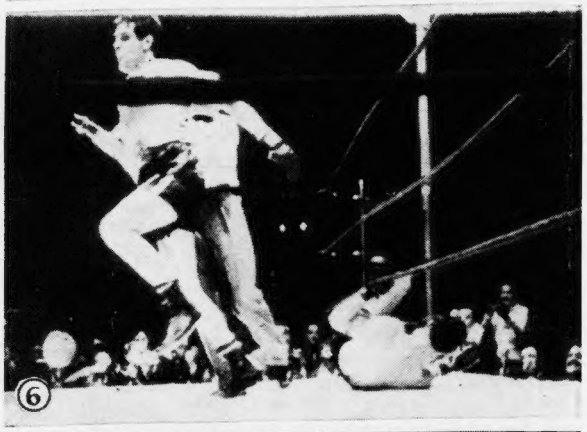
Hughes rose from third place with an 11-point speedup in his hitting while Gib Brack of Baltimore, who had been second, slipped back to a tie for fourth.

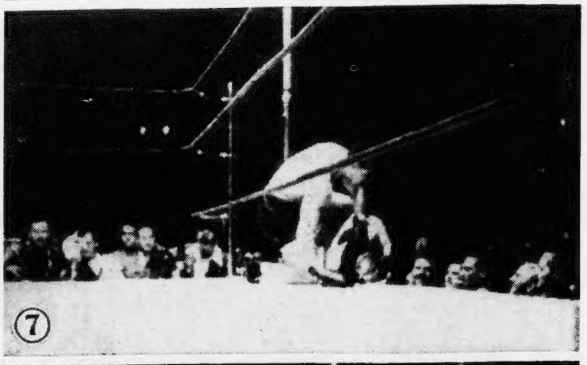


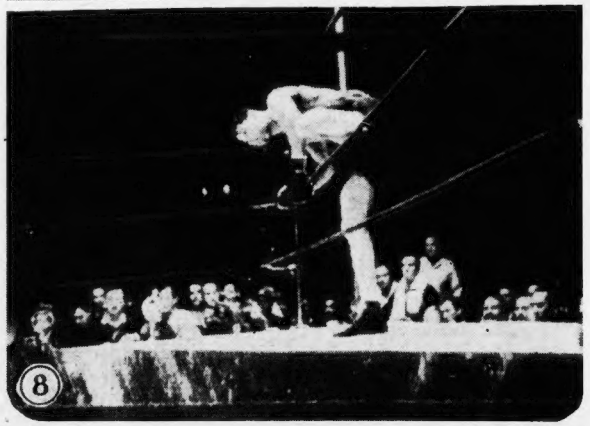












LEFT HOOK by Buddy Baer sends Joe Louis through ropes and flat on his back on apron of ring in first round of 15-round championship bout at capital. Louis was up at four to continue fighting. Baer last glorious chance for title when gladiators stopped fighting 10 seconds before end of round, thinking they had heard bell. Note Baer's spryness skipping to neutral corner. He was in splendid shape for bout, and gave his all. Bout ended at start of seventh round, when Baer's manager entered ring to protest Louis' alleged punching after bell.

Methuen Dedicates Eddie Neil Memorial Today

METHUEN, May 24 (AP)—They are dedicating a memorial today to Eddie Neil, Associated Press correspondent who was killed in the Spanish Civil War—and few of those attending know there's an older memorial to him in this, his home town: A Christmas box monument festooned with holly and mistletoe.

At today's ceremony, townspeople are naming in his honor a playstead that has a field house, two baseball fields, a football gridiron, badminton courts and a quarter-mile track. Eddie, the one-time sports writer who won a Pulitzer prize honor for a story about a bob-sled ride, would have liked that.

The other memorial is his mother's idea.

In old Christmas boxes, locked in a trunk, she has hundreds of yellowed newspaper clippings, signed with Neil's name and covering the years from Neil's first treasured "by-line" to his last dispatch from Spain.

Dykes' Chisox Threat For Flag Says Mack

PHILADELPHIA, May 24 (AP)—That's quite a team Jimmy Dykes has welded out of sidetracked players and the veteran Connie Mack is the authority. Unless the Athletic pilot misses his guess, Jimmy's White Sox are going to make it hot for Cleveland's league leaders. Matter of fact, he says they'll grab the pennant if the Indians fold in the stretch.

"I tell you he's a wonder," Connie enthusiastically lauds the Chicago boss who once played for him.

"By golly he traded around until I thought he was going to collect all the unwanted players in the league. I don't mean there was anything wrong with them personally but they were just a lot of ball players who were sidetracked.

"He had Mike Tresh, Luke Appling and Mike Kreevich when he started swapping. Now look at the team. He got players from Washington, New York, St. Louis and from me. And they're winning ball games for him. Yes, sir, he's a wonder."

And Connie had all this to say with a smile just after the second place Sox had walloped his Athletics 4-1, ending a four-game victory streak. But then he agreed Johnny Rigney's six-hit pitching deserved to win.

"Jimmy always had a lot of baseball sense but he surprised even me the way he made others play for him," declared Mack. "He gets more out of a player than any manager in the league. When Jimmy was with me he never missed a chance to learn more about baseball and he kept it all in his mind.

"The whole White Sox team plays the way Jimmy used to—they get a lot of fun out of the game. Jimmy enjoyed every minute he played. When you get a team like that together it's easy to win and that's why the White Sox are up front."

Cleveland's got a good club, admits Connie, "but you can't make a mistake with a team like the White Sox that close. If they make just one Dykes may beat them out."

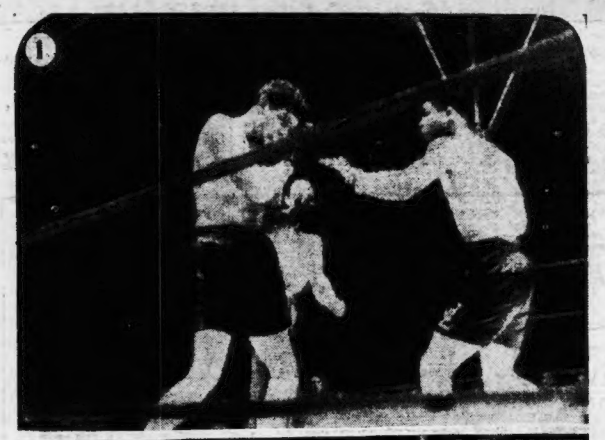
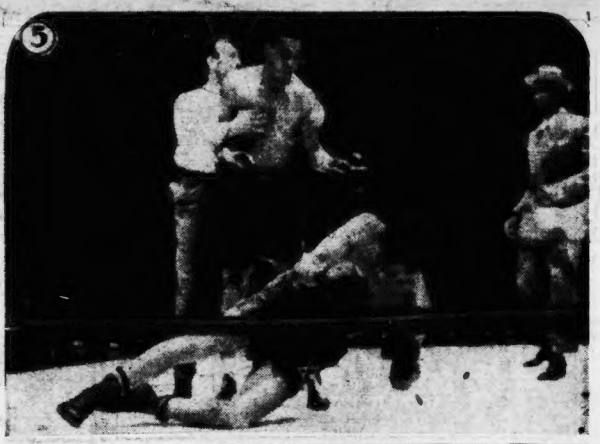
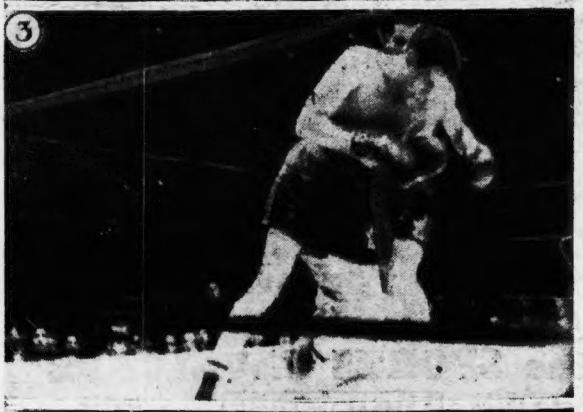
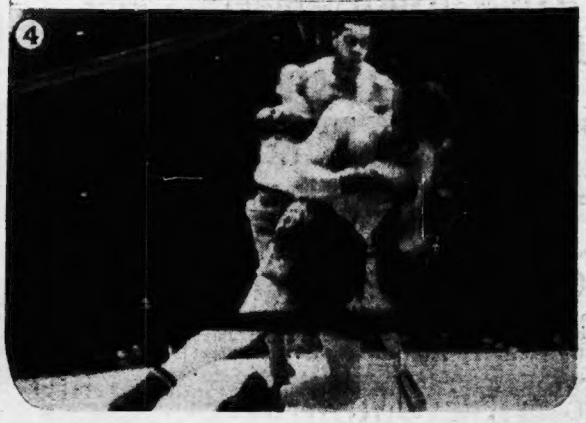
IN TOMORROW'S SUNDAY ADVERTISER









For Whom the Bell Tolls—Not for Joe Louis did bell ring ending sixth round of fight with Buddy Baer, say two Washington judges and timekeeper. Picture sequence vividly tells drama of Louis' alleged late righthand sock. No. 1, blow starts; 2, punch lands (Baer's left is low, indicating he started to drop guard). Nos. 3 and 4, Buddy hits deck. 5, judge, straw hat, comes in as referee holds Louis. 6 and 7, referee escorts Louis away. 8, aide drags Baer to corner as manager argues with referee.
